YANKS POISED FOR NEW BLOWS AT EUROPE; BOMBERS CUT NAZI FEEDER LINE TO ITALY

UP THEY GO!—A German war prisoner stacks peanuts with a right good will on a Macon county farm way down in Georgia. He's from the Afrika Korps.

Axis Veterans Harvest Peanuts--Behind Bars of Different Faith

To our knowledge the following story is the first obtained by direct contact with German war prisoners in the United States while they are engaged in helping with the harvest.

By HARRY LEE.

They stood in the plowed Georgia field, stripped to the waist, brown as saddle leather, these young warriors of the Afrika Korps, and pointed their fingers toward us.

"Phro-po-ghan-da" they called, enunciating each syllable—"phro-po-ghan-da."

And when we shook our heads they ramained unconvinced—we were the enemy, and though they were men and we were men, the strangeness and the barrier of different faith remained.

We could say no word to them. Army regulations, carefully explained before we were allowed to visit the Macon county peanut field where the captured German prisoners of war were gathering the harvest, were explicit. We might go to the field and take our pictures, but the United States Army guards would not assist us in any way, and we were not to talk to the prisoners.

Prisoners Shout Jokes.

Yet, as they worked in the field wearing G. I. blue fatigue trousers with the large yellow P's splashed on the hips these sturdy young men might have been from any state in this Union; and their talk back and forth, the shouted jokes, the clean-rising laughter, though in another language, was the talk and the joking and the laughter of young men anywhere.

And when the evil-snouted, double-tired, Army trucks lined the streets of the small Georgia town of Oglethorpe, indolent beneath a still hot September sun, the young men crowding them, singing their marching songs to the music of a concertina, might have been young men rich with the exuberance of health and laughter, returning homeward from a school outing or a vacation in the country.

Confined by Barbed Wire.

Yet they returned to a camp bound by close strands of barbwire and with machineguns quartering the the clearing, ready to send death among any who forgot that they were confined by war within that hundred square yards' space, and with floodlamps ready to blast away whatever night might offer them of comfort or concealment.

But they are well cared for, these young men. There was no difference in the facilities offered them and those provided for our own men. The rows of green tents were the same, the batteries of field kitchens were no different. And the war prisoners, lounging in the sun in brief shorts, or working about their camp duties, seemed no less content than the men in khaki on the other side.

Rights Respected.

The officers commanding the prison camp explained that the rights of the prisoners, as established by the Geneva conference, were rigidly respected. They could not be made to work and their help with the harvest was upon a volunteer basis, and even then the soldiers who stood guard among the stubble of the Georgia fields could not goad them to hurry, could only stand and watch.

But these young men have required no goading. Perhaps because they are grateful for release from the confinement of the camp, they have turned to the labor in the fields with a will. The stacks of peanuts piled swiftly beneath their forks, and the farmer standing watching muttered his relief at seeing the months of planting and tending coming to harvest, a harvest that seemed unlikely a few days earlier.

"Don't know what we'd a done without 'em," said one of the farmers, J. D. Drummon, on whose Macon county farm we watched the war prisoners work. "Guess we'd a lost the crop. Nobody here but myself and wife and one little bitty ole boy. And the boy's down with asthma so bad he ain't much help. I expect they've put up about a hundred stacks today. If I can get 'em for just one more day they ought to get through."

And other farmers, who were equally desperate for help in gathering the peanut crop that provides essential oils for the war effort, were equally grateful.

Mrs. Fred Guerry, of the B. B. Brooks estate in the same county, said that the prisoners had put up about 150 to 200 stacks a day for her for four days.

"Seem Like Nice Boys."

"They seem like nice boys, too," Mrs. Guerry said. "You never would think about them being German. And some of them are so young. . . ."

A. T. McKenzie, who owns a farm on Route 1, Macon county, said the prisoners shook 90 stacks of peanuts for him.

"They're good boys," McKenzie said. "I took a case of soft drinks down to 'em while they were working. I got out of the car and yelled. They jumped real quick."

"I like to hear 'em sing," McKenzie added. "Can't understand 'em, of course. But it sounds real nice."

H. J. Prance, farm agent in Macon county, told other stories illustrating the relationship between the prisoners of war and the farmers of the section who—though their own sons might be facing the kin of these German boys as they surged against the European fortress—could not see in young men of 18 and 20 anything more or less than young men who grew hungry as they worked and who would be grateful for an extra attention and added thoughtfulness.

Prance told of the farmer's wife

New Administration Quarrel Explodes; Hull's Office Accused

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A bitter, new administration quarrel exploded into the open today when James D. Lecron tossed up the job of increasing food production in South America, and accused the State Department of "interference, obstruction and unintelligent dictation."

Lecron, a close associate of Vice President Wallace for many years, resigned as director of the food supply division in the Office of the Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs. In this post, his duties included increasing Latin-American agricultural output in accordance with the over-all needs of the United Nations.

Hits State Department.

He told Nelson Rockefeller, the co-ordinator, in a letter that the State Department was making it impossible to carry out needed projects, and added:

"I am unwilling any longer to beat my head against this wall of incompetence and interference."

Rockefeller was out of town and there was no immediate word as to his reaction to the resignation of his lieutenant.

Asked for comment, a State Department spokesman said the department and Rockefeller's office were in "complete accord" on the food program. He declared, too, that the department had always "facilitated the carrying out of the food programs which have had the approval of other appropriate agencies of the government."

Lecron has been with the government for the last 10 years except for a period in 1940 when he resigned to manage Wallace's campaign for vice president. Formerly an editorial writer on the Des Moines Register Tribune, he came here in 1933 as an assistant to Wallace, then secretary of agriculture.

Food Stamp Chief.

After the 1940 campaign, he returned to the Agriculture Department to help manage the food stamp program and in June of last year transferred to Rockefeller's office.

His resignation thus marked the departure from handling of foreign economic affairs of another of the men generally classed here as one of the Wallace group. President Roosevelt abolished the Board of Economic Warfare, headed by Wallace, in July and rebuked the vice president and Secretary of Commerce Jones for publicly airing their dispute over stockpiling of strategic war materials. Milo Perkins, who had been Wallace's right-hand man in the BEW, departed a short while later from the Office of Economic Warfare, set up under Leo T. Crowley to succeed BEW.

Lecron's resignation pointed up

Finns Seeking Way To Discard German Yoke

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Finnish parliament, in a secret session lasting an hour and 10 minutes today, discussed means of getting Finland out of her military alliance with Germany and making a separate peace with Russia.

Parliament took no action, but the best information was that the members generally were pro-Allied.

Members opposed to Finland getting out of the war, political leaders and government officials were reported in agreement that a peace guaranteeing Finland's pre-1939 boundaries was their mutual aim and that no steps should be taken that might weaken the unity of the home front while all opportunities for getting the country out of the conflict were investigated.

The official Finnish communique issued tonight gave no details of the session but did quote Premier Edwin Linkomies as saying "our mutual aim is for a safe peace," which the Finns describe as a peace guaranteeing their democratic independence.

The government was reported as viewing the present military alliance with Germany as an economic necessity. Also, some 80,000 German troops occupy the northern section of the country.

Finland has made some peace soundings but the government wants Russia to outline her demands. Russia, on the other hand, maintains Finland is fighting on the losing side and should offer terms.

Finland made an effort to negotiate a peace through the United States, but this fell through because the Finnish government declined to make any move to break her Axis ties, although a large majority of the Finns are convinced Germany can't win the war.

Finns, however, still hope the United States will help guarantee any peace made with Russia.

Child's Condition Critical; Penicillin Injected Hourly

Now it is Barbara's fight. The only thing her friends can do is wait and wish her luck.

In front of the little white brick building, which is Grady hospital's contagious ward, Barbara's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Gallimore, sat last night in a battered old car.

They could do nothing but wait, pray and hope.

Everything that could be done was being done. Physicians were with little Barbara almost constantly, watching her reaction to the new drug, penicillin, which arrived in Atlanta early yesterday morning by an Eastern air liner, through instigation of The Constitution.

Injections of the rare and powerful drug were being made hourly in an effort to kill the streptococci infection in her throat which sulfa drugs had failed to counteract.

Physicians gave her only 24 hours to live when efforts were launched Wednesday to obtain the penicillin.

In the city room of The Constitution where arrangements for bringing the drug here by air were made, telephones jangled as those who had read of Barbara's fight called to ask, "How is the little girl?"

Reports came from the hospital last night:

"Barbara's condition is generally improved."

"Her fever is still 102 degrees."

"The drug is meeting the expectations of the doctors in charge."

Yet it was too early to expect a

IN EUROPE AT LAST—Allied troops scurried onto the beaches of Italy's toe early yesterday by negotiating the strait of Messina behind a heavy bombardment from Sicily and under an umbrella of air cover. The landing was at and near Reggio Calabria, it is presumed.

New 5 Pct. Cut In Newsprint Recommended

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Apparently resigned to a new cut in newsprint usage on October 1, the newspaper industry advisory committee has recommended a 5 per cent reduction in newsprint supplies.

At the same time the committee recommended to the War Production Board a tightening of controls over the granting of additional newsprint to newspapers which appeal for extra tonnage on a hardship plea.

Neither recommendation has been acted upon by the WPB. In announcing actions taken by the advisory committee at its monthly meeting here yesterday, WPB declared that the exact percentage of the new fourth quarter cut can not be determined until the combined resources and production board meets in the near future to learn the maximum tonnage that Canada can deliver during the fourth quarter. Canada has been delivering 210,100 tons of newsprint a month since January 1, approximately three fourths of the entire United States supply.

"The newspaper industry committee advised against a larger percentage cut and recommended only a five per cent reduction because it felt the necessary tonnage could be taken out of inventories," WPB's statement said.

The committee also proposed a reduction in the newsprint inventories permitted publishers. This would cut a newspaper's holdings from a 50-day to a 40-day supply in the northeast and central regions and from a 75-day to a 65-day inventory in the west and south, effective as of September 1.

Allies Sink Three Jap Ships In Wewak Raid

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Saturday, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Three 7,000-ton Japanese freight transports were sunk and a destroyer and a fourth transport out of a seven-ship convoy were set ablaze by Allied planes in a raid Thursday morning on the harbor at Wewak, New Guinea.

Today's communique, reporting the raid, said the Japanese tried frantically to protect the ships, sending in 35 fighter planes, of which 12 were downed for certain and 13 others probably destroyed or damaged. They also reported a balloon barrage.

The presence of the convoy and the Japanese efforts to shield it were taken to indicate the enemy intends to hold Wewak, 350 miles above his tottering garrison at Salamaua, as a major operating base.

The balloons were aloft and the Zeros and twin-engined fighters were in the air when the raiders came in at mast height through a curtain of Japanese antiaircraft fire. The convoy had arrived during the previous night.

This was the first mention in months of Japanese convoys in the vicinity of northern New Guinea, where the enemy has relied almost entirely recently on barges for supply and reinforcement.

The convoy, consisting of five transports and two destroyers, were attacked in the Wewak harbor where they had arrived with reinforcements and supplies for the enemy garrison there.

"Coming in at masthead height, our bombers scored direct hits with thousand-pound bombs on three freighter transports, each of 7,000 tons, sinking them," today's communique said.

"In addition, one of the escorting warships and a 1,000-ton cargo ship sustained direct hits and were left ablaze."

The low-flying raiders strafed and sank several small craft in the harbor.

Thirty-five Japanese planes intercepted after being "flown in from the rear," the communique said.

Eisenhower's Warriors Take ReggioCalabria

By EDWARD KENNEDY.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—British and Canadian troops landed successfully on the toe of Italy before dawn today on the long road to Rome and plunged inland under General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's order to "knock Italy out of the war."

Scilla and Reggio Calabria, Italian ports 12 miles apart, already had fallen, the Berlin radio indicated. A Rome broadcast in phrases reminiscent of the Axis debacle in Sicily also said: "The enemy's invasion now is in full swing. The enemy has set foot on the Italian mainland and is taking full advantage of his material superiority."

This was the first of several expected invasions of the Hitler-held European continent. Other powerful American and French forces were poised in North Africa.

Returning airmen who witnessed the early hours of the invasion indicated its continuing success. One RAF Spitfire pilot said he had maintained constant patrol over the landing area without encountering any Axis planes, and added: "In the strait we saw hundreds of craft darting to and fro unmolested."

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, directed the assault with assets never before available to him. His air strength was prodigious; the Royal Navy and American naval forces dominated the Messina strait and other southern coastal areas of Italy; he had hundreds of thousands of seasoned warriors under him.

With excellent co-ordination, Flying Fortresses made their deepest strike into northern Italy to wreck the Brenner pass railroad feeding German troops into Italy; U. S. Mitchell bombers also tore up the rail network radiating from Cancello above Naples in order to seal off Southern Italy and make it ripe for lan conquest.

At the same time, thunderous waves of Allied planes supporting their ground forces smashed at the enemy on the toe of Italy in continuing assaults.

The Brenner Pass is the funnel for Nazi troops rushing into Italy. United States Flying Fortresses cut the rail line below it yesterday, wrecking the tracks and bridges at Bolzano and Trento 35 and 65 miles south of the strategic gateway, at least temporarily halting traffic.

It was their deepest strike—

Germans Retreat 12 Miles, Yield 400 Towns to Russians

Steam-Roller Smash Approaches Stalino

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Russia's conquering Red army announced the recovery of 400 more towns and villages in advances of up to 12 miles on four major sectors of the 600-mile front today, rolling up its most sensational gain with a steam-roller smash through the Donets basin carrying it to within 28 miles of the great Nazi southern front base of Stalino.

MERCY FLYER—Captain M. L. Sater, Eastern Air Lines pilot, delivered the penicillin, powerful miracle drug, in person at the municipal airport early yesterday morning after flying it from New York.

The Germans, perhaps preparing the way for the fall of this bastion, long Hitler's headquarters for southern front operations, made the unusual announcement during the day that the Soviet army had launched a "grand scale" offensive in this area.

Drive Hard.

The Russians were driving hard upon Stalino from the northeast, and tonight's daily communique as recorded by the Soviet monitor told of the fall of half a dozen towns and railway stations in this region, the closest to Stalino being the large community of Aleksinovoorlovka, 28 miles to the east and slightly north.

Altogether the Russians reoccupied 150 populated places in the Donets basin, said the bulletin, in a successful development of the offensive which carried forward for gains of from 9 to 12 miles.

In a second swift and dramatic drive, that westward across the northern Ukraine, the Red army also gained from 9 to 12 miles and ran through 100 populated places, including the town of Putivl, only 30 miles northeast of the big Nazi central front base of Konotop.

20,000 Miles.

Today's Red army advances brought the total area recaptured from the Germans since the beginning of the July 12 drive to more than 20,000 square miles along the 600-mile active front.

The new line, still fluid as the offensive appeared to gain strength daily, already showed the recapture of some 230,000 square miles by the Russians since the time of the greatest Nazi advances, which carried to the highwater mark of Stalingrad.

Putivl apparently was taken by the same forces which had driven down from the north upon Konotop to take the rail town of Krolovets on Thursday. Forces which captured the big German base of Sumy, 75 miles east of Konotop, on Thursday plunged ahead westward along the Belgorod-Sumy-Konotop railway to take the large towns of Belopole and Vorozhba.

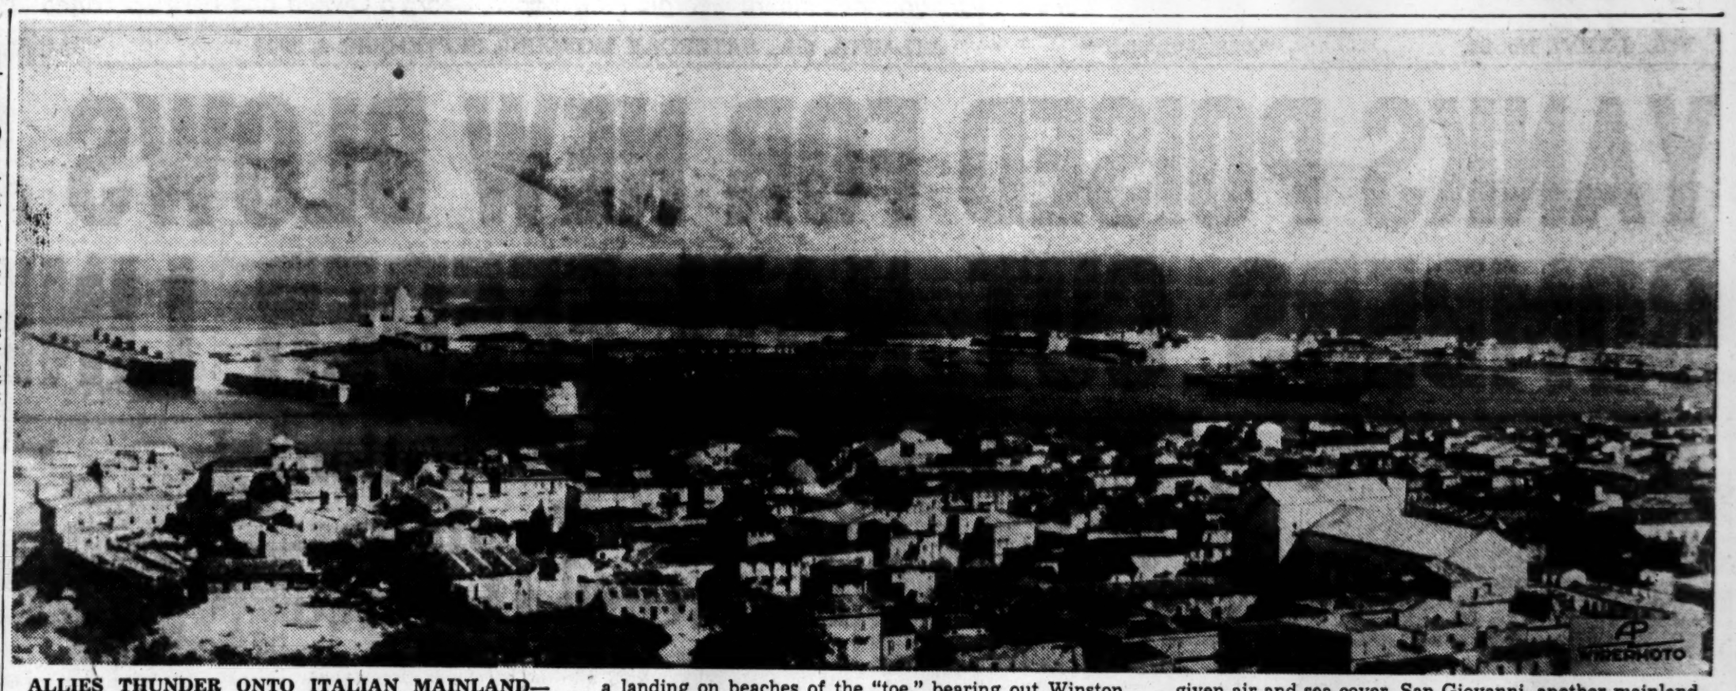

This railway goes on through Konotop, the main line west to Kiev and the upper Dnieper, approximately 130 miles away. The Germans, falling back steadily since the Russians launched their current offensive on July 12, have shown no signs of making a halt or determined stand, and under the heavy Soviet blows still seem likely to fall back to the Dnieper line.

100 Towns Freed.

To the north the Russians captured 100 populated places in the important Smolensk sector, the daily bulletin said, scoring gains of from 2½ to 4 miles, and in the central Bryansk area occupied more than 50 populated places in advances of from 4 to 6 miles.

In the area west and southwest of Kharkov, Russian troops, "overcoming enemy resistance and counterattacks, continued offensive engagements for improvement of their positions," the communique said, not announcing any specific gains made or towns captured.

The Russians' most spectacular drives at the moment were those through the Donets basin toward Stalino and through the northern Ukraine upon Konotop, with indications that the Nazis were the more concerned over the former.

ALLIES THUNDER ONTO ITALIAN MAINLAND—This narrow strait separating Messina, Sicily, and Italy churned with Allied might early yesterday as British and Canadian forces under General Dwight Eisenhower made a landing on beaches of the "toe," bearing out Winston Churchill's promise of probable invasion "before the leaves of autumn fall." The landings, presumptively near Reggio Calabria, shown in background at right, were given air and sea cover. San Giovanni, another mainland town oft-battered by Allied planes, lies at left in background. Reggio Calabria was engulfed in opening Allied assaults and bitter fighting ensued, said Berlin.

Now her friends can only wait.

Now, at last, the decision lay with chance and the child's resistance.

Everything that could be done to help her was being done.

But it was still too early to know.

Her condition is still critical.

She has a chance. That was all physicians in charge would say.

Penicillin Sent For Macon Patient

Another package of the new miracle drug penicillin that is helping Barbara Gallimore in her fight for life at Grady hospital, arrived by air in Atlanta last night and was taken immediately to Macon, Ga., by car to help save 16-year-old Shirley Carter, of Danville, Va., who is ill in a Macon hospital.

The drug was picked up at the Atlanta municipal airport by the city editor of the Macon News, who made arrangements with Dr. Chester Keefer, of Boston, Mass., for its release.

Earlier yesterday it was announced that efforts to obtain the drug for Shirley, made by the office of Representative Burch, Democrat, Virginia, had met with failure.

The congressman's secretary said both the surgeon general of the United States public health service and surgeon general of the Army had advised him the only way to obtain the drug for civilian use was for the doctor attending Miss Carter to make application through Dr. Keefer.

Hull Dispute

signs of discontent in various government agencies over State Department control of foreign economic activities.

Authority "to unify" the foreign economics operations of all government agencies in so far as they affect phases of foreign policy was given to Secretary of State Hull in a Presidential directive last June 3.

In submitting his resignation in a letter made public today, Lecron told Rockefeller that he wished to be relieved of his duties "at the very earliest date that is convenient to you" because of "interference, obstruction, delay and unintelligent dictation on the part of certain officials of the State Department, particularly those in the division of economic operations which have been given primary authority by the State Department to control our operations."

"Hamstringing."

Lecron said his food supply division, which is charged with increasing food production in Latin America, was hampered by "hamstringing tactics" of State Department officials.

He asserted that the interference he charged was not new, but that it had been going on since his division was created in June, 1942.

The State Department had no immediate comment.

Meanwhile, sources close to the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations under former Governor Herbert Lehman, of New York, said that it was apparent that various government agencies were attaching interpretations in some cases different from those of the State Department concerning the manner and extent to which the department's power to control foreign economic activities should be applied.

Committee Votes 'Justice' for Petain

ALGIERS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The French Committee of National Liberation, meeting under the presidency of General Charles de Gaulle, approved today a sweeping indictment against Marshal Philippe Petain and other members of his Vichy government and voted to bring them to justice "as soon as circumstances permit."

The committee guaranteed to "assure as soon as circumstances permit an action of justice in regard to Marshal Petain and those participating in the pseudo government formed by him which capitulated, struck at the constitution, collaborated with the enemy, delivered French workers to the Germans and made French forces fight against the Allies or against the French who continued the struggle."

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

Invasion

1,500 miles round-trip—into Italy, and other formations blasted the freight yards at Bologna on the same rail route 170 miles below the pass.

The United Nations radio appealed to the people of Italy to receive "the Allied forces of liberation" in the same manner their ancestors had received those of Garibaldi, and the broadcast concluded: "Out wtih the Germans."

"Allied forces are prepared to face the most bitter resistance since it can be foreseen that German resistance will increase in violence as Allied forces advance within the so-called fortress of Europe," this broadcast said.

Berlin's Claims.

A German broadcast recorded by the Associated Press told of fierce Axis resistance in the rugged mountains between Reggio Calabria and Scilla, but indicated the fall of those two points when it said British tank forces had pushed eastward from Reggio Calabria and also had penetrated up the coast as far as Scilla.

It declared the Allied landing was "on a large scale" and that "considerable losses" had been inflicted on the invaders.

Hundreds of small invasion barges crossed the moonless two-mile-wide Messina strait at 4:30 a. m. (9:30 p. m. Thursday, Atlanta time).

Land guns mounted in Sicily arched a canopy of shells overhead, the Royal Navy stood offshore to obliterate Axis beach resistance, and hundreds of American and Allied planes bombed and machinegunned Axis shore defenders to pave the way for the first shock troops.

It was a terrific barrage that first hit the beaches and crawled up into the mountains, wiping out enemy pillboxes, dugouts, barbed wire entanglements and large gun mounts studding the uplands.

Set Up Bridgehead.

The first waves of British and Canadians struck the beaches, fanned out and established a bridgehead for other oncoming barges that spilled their loads of men and equipment on the shores below the foothills of Aspromonte—Bitter mountain—a range that is the spinal column of the toe of Italy.

"Allied forces under the command of General Eisenhower have continued their advance," said the brief bulletin issued two hours after the landing.

Spokesmen here emphasized that the new assault was not to be regarded as "a second front," but merely a sequel to the North African and Sicilian campaigns.

From Reggio Calabria it is more than 300 land miles to Rome and another 350 air line miles to the Brenner Pass.

Bombers Score.

Mitchell medium bombers shattered freight yards at Cancello, northeast of Naples, and headquarters declared that afterward photographs showed that "all lines to Naples, Salerno, Torre Annunziata, Capua and Benevento had been blocked." Twenty-three Axis planes were shot down at Cancello in a fierce air battle, and 10 P-38 Lightnings were lost.

Aerial reconnaissance after the Fortress raids on Bolzano, Trento and Bologna showed that "this main artery of German reinforcements which have been pouring into Italy is now clogged with wreckage, at least temporarily," a headquarters announcement today said.

This railroad snaking down from Brenner Pass carries half of all traffic between Germany and Italy, 95 per cent of the oil needed for the Axis war machine in Italy, and 80 per cent of Italy's steel and coal requirements.

34 Planes Ruined.

Cargoes of high explosives tore up the railway yards, warehouses and railway cars at Bologna, and great fires were set.

Thirty-four enemy planes were destroyed during all of yesterday's widespread flights, and 15 Allied planes were missing.

Vatican Envoy On Way to U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The State Department announced tonight that the Vatican has applied for an American visa for Enrico Galeazzi, an official of Vatican state who is preparing to visit Washington.

A Lisbon dispatch today said Galeazzi left there by clipper Wednesday night for the United States.

The information bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference at Washington said that "information received from Vatican City is to the effect that the purpose of the journey" of Signor Galeazzi "concerns financial and administrative matters" of the Vatican.

Sabotage by Italian Underground Helped

MADRID, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A fortnight of sabotage by underground forces, aimed at communication lines, supply dumps, repair shops and airfields, has helped pave the way for Allied invasion of continental Italy, according to reports reaching here.

To the accuracy of the Allied bombings has been added persistent wrecking behind the lines by Italians willing to risk the firing squad in order to make the invasion of Italy easier and bring an earlier end of the war.

'Can Be But One End--Success,' Monty Tells His Beloved 8th

By DANIEL DE LUCE.

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WHICH INVADED ITALY, Sept. 3.—(AP)—General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery addressed a personal message to his Eighth Army troops just before they attacked the Italian mainland, telling them there could be but one end to the battle—success.

This was his message:

"Having captured Sicily as our first slice of the Italian home country, the time has now come to carry the battle onto the mainland of Italy.

"To the Eighth Army has been given the great honor of being the first troops of the Allied armies to land on the mainland of the continent of Europe.

"We have a good plan and air support on a greater scale than we ever had before.

"There can only be one end to this next battle: another success.

"Forward to victory.

"Let us knock Italy out of the war.

"Good luck, and God bless you all."

Invasion Cheered By Free Italians

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Free Italians in Britain cheered the Allied landings in Italy today as heralding a possible quick exit from the war for their homeland.

Andrea Simoni, head of the pro-Allied Italian group here, said:

"The Italians at last will be able to give up the game, and quickly. The Badoglio government has been unable to do so before the Allies occupied the country, but he knows the Allies will help throw off the German rule.

"Even the Italians in north Italy have been helping the Allies. They welcome the invading forces."

'No Surprise,' Axis Quavers Of Invasion

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The beleaguered Axis called the Allied invasion of the Italian mainland today "no surprise," but reaction as expressed through the two propaganda machines ranged from silence in the first few hours to nervous professions of optimism.

Both Rome and Berlin seemed to have a tough time explaining satisfactorily how the Allies succeeded in setting foot on the ramparts of Adolf Hitler's "fortress of Europe."

The Berlin radio gave details of the invasion, ebphasizing all the time that the storming of Italy had been expected. Rome in a carefully worded communique told the Italians that the conqueror had come.

In an apparent attempt to rouse Italian soldiers to genuine resistance of the Allied forces, the Rome radio in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said:

"A new period began for our country today when the enemy set foot on our peninsula. It is our duty to match our heroism with theirs. It is our duty in the face of the growing enemy threat to strengthen our unity of spirit."

The committee on organization and law will meet at 10:30 a. m. to formulate this report. Following the regents' meeting, the WGST radio committee will meet.

Together these three represent war production, the Army supply service and the Navy which must transport and guard munitions and materiel moved overseas.

Danish Minister Calls.

In addition, there were other callers at the White House, but for reasons of security their identities were not disclosed with two exceptions. Mr. Churchill had a meeting with Brendan Bracken, British minister of information, and Mr. Roosevelt received Henrik E. Kauffmann, the Danish minister.

Kauffmann's visit gave further emphasis to the importance attached here to the Danes' revolt against their Nazi oppressors.

Secretary of State Hull had praised the Danes yesterday and, although saying they had been regarded all along as Allies of the United Nations, suggested that their status as an ally might now be placed on a more formal basis.

News Delayed.

The President and prime minister knew in advance, of course, of the plans for the Allied thrust across the Straits of Messina, but neither received word of the actual landings on the Italian mainland until this morning.

They sat up until 1 a. m. continuing their talks and awaiting the news, but finally went to bed without receiving it, although the first landings were made about 10:30 p. m., eastern war time. Sunspots, it developed today, had interfered with radio communication.

Supreme Combat Here, De Gaulle Tells French

ALGIERS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Referring to the Allied plunge onto the toe of the Italian boot, General Charles de Gaulle, co-leader of the French Committee of National Liberation, told the people of France by radio today that "the hour of supreme combat and sacrifice has struck."

Speaking over the United Nations radio on the fourth anniversary of France's entry into the war, De Gaulle declared that recognition of the committee by 26 nations "has just given striking proof of our solidarity for triumph and peace."

De Gaulle said that France, despite her misfortune, "is first and foremost determined to develop her internal and external effort so that the enemy will be beaten, completely beaten, beaten as soon as possible, beaten by itself as well as others."

Patton Attack on Enemy's Rear Seen as Troops Stay in Hiding

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Official silence hiding the whereabouts of American forces in the invasion of Italy prompted speculation tonight that new landings would be made soon, perhaps including a large-scale assault to the north on Italy's west coast to hit the enemy from the rear.

Silence regarding the menace of the Americans lay heavily over the enemy in the whole of the southern theater, and the Berlin radio said the Axis was prepared for "two or three blows against the continent simultaneously.

As General Montgomery's Eighth Army of British and Canadians burst through the first barricade in the Axis defenses of Europe's continental mainland, there stood behind them the highly mechanized and heavily gunned forces of the American Seventh Army under Lieutenant General George S. Patton Jr., which had swept through two-thirds of Sicily in a record campaign to clear the way for today's invasion.

And somewhere in the Mediterranean another powerful American force, the Fifth Army of Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark, awaited battle orders. This Army under the cover of much secrecy has been training intensively in North Africa since last January.

Not only might some of these forces land above the Eighth Army, but some elements might join the British and Canadians in early moves.

Although the first landings put the British and Canadians on the longest path to Rome—and Berlin—the Allies have plenty of ships and planes to strike farther north and cut off the southern defenses if the going there is too slow and rough.

Such a short-cut thrust also would speed the capture of Italy's southernmost good harbor at Naples and accelerate progress toward Foggia and Bari, where there are big airfields only about 550 miles from the Rumanian oil fields and relatively near to other central European targets.

It was the British and Canadians, elements of the hard, tough and gallant British Eighth Army, who formed the bridgehead in the area of Reggio Calabria and became the first Allied fighting men to set foot on the mainland and stay since the tragedy of Greece.

For the men of the Eighth Army it had been a long way back—2,050 miles since Alamein—but today on the fourth anniversary of Britain's declaration of war they were not alone with the weight of the Americans still to be brought to bear.

The Axis desperately tried to guess the real scope of the plan of the supreme Allied commander, the American general, Dwight D. Eisenhower, and whether he intended far more than was immediately apparent and whether other and greater forces now being held back would leap at other points.

With the usual secrecy covering much of the action, two points were already apparent or at all events highly probable:

1. General Eisenhower's minimum immediate design was to clean up the Messina strait on both sides, thus immensely relieving the Allied supply and communications problem and freeing Allied fleets to cruise up and down the coast of Italy, laying the whole country bare to landings if they are deemed necessary and advisable.

Political Offensive.

2. Opinion was strong in London that it was in one sense a political offensive as well, intended to cause among the Italian people, who have long been clamoring for peace, such an upheaval as to force the Badoglio government to get out of the war or possibly give him the opportunity to do so.

It was believed by many here that the Badoglio government's will to war is by no means strong, and that its position is like that of the axed tree which might fall with an encouraging push.

Estimates of German strength in Italy ran from 10 to 18 divisions, with the bulk of these in the north but enough in the south to cause considerable trouble to Allied invaders unless Hitler should elect to fall back as he has done consistently since Tunisia.

It was generally accepted here that the Nazis would stand and fight this time regardless of the strong possibility that the war for Italy might soon be over so far as the Italians themselves are concerned.

The alternative for Hitler—loss of Italy—would gravely wound his position in all southeastern Europe, nakedly exposing a flank of tremendous length and imminently endangering him all through the Balkans, where he would immediately lose the services of an estimated 27 Italian divisions.

Many in London believe that the next major development will be invasion of the Balkans through Crete and Greece by British empire and Allied forces of great but secret strength based in the Middle East.

Hungarians Want Peace.

A final collapse of Italy could be expected to undermine or even bring down the whole rickety Axis military structure in the Balkans, where the Hungarians are openly angling for peace and leaderless Bulgaria is attempting to set a new course in the war.

After the Berlin radio had mentioned the possibility that American troops may be thrown into the Italian invasion at any moment, British censorship permitted dispatch of a quotation from an article in the London Evening newspaper, the Star, in which General Sir Robert Gordon-Finlayson, its military correspondent, said:

"We can be quite sure that the Seventh U. S. Army . . . has been destined by General Eisenhower to land somewhere in Italy very soon, but it is impossible yet to say where. . . . The Seventh Army will have been assigned a very important task."

An editorial in the Evening Standard said that "Messina is just the beginning. It is not likely that Allied strategy foresees only a landing at the toe and a steady, sober progress up the foot of the mainland."

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 4, 1943.

Anxious Hours

First invasion of the European continent has begun. Allied troops have established beachheads on the toe of Italy. Less than a month since the final victory in the battle of Sicily, the battle of Italy has begun.

It is useless to attempt to guess how the fighting will go. All we can do is to wait, as patiently as we can, wait for the official communiques which will reveal how the battle is going.

They are anxious hours, these through which we now are living. It is difficult to think about anything at all save those men and machines or ours which are struggling on Italian soil; it is difficult to keep needed attention on the jobs we must do, at home.

But we can feel calm confidence that the outcome will be victory. General Eisenhower and his associates do not undertake campaigns until they have good cause to know they will proceed according to their plans. We have overwhelming superiority in the air, a strength which, in modern war, can easily be decisive. We have terrific fire power of artillery, and we have fighting armies, tried in the furnace of battles previously won, than which the world has never seen superior.

The British Eighth Army, under General Montgomery, had the honor of spearheading the European invasion. They won the right to that honor at El Alamein, across the sands of North Africa, in Tunis and at Catania.

Our hearts are with them, and with our own boys in the American Seventh, their comrades of Sicily. We know they will carve the victory, but we wait with anxious hearts for the news we long to hear.

That is all, now, that we can do.

For all aggressors, the going becomes definitely rough. The Rome-Berlin machine is down with a cracked axle. All over the Pacific, Tokyo finds "road closed" signs.

This Is Shameful

Disclosure that there are 5,000 pending applications for old-age pensions in Georgia, some of which date back to 1937, constitutes a disgrace which no excuses on the part of those responsible can mitigate.

Director A. J. Hartley, of the State Department of Public Welfare, has ordered that all such applications must be passed, the application list brought up to date, within 30 days. No one but will commend that order.

The amount which can be paid to any old-age pensioner in Georgia is small. When, to this disadvantage is added the fact that applicants for such pensions sometimes have to wait two or three years for action, the situation becomes a tragic disgrace.

Presumably the vast majority of those seeking pensions are in dire need of financial help. Applications are not filed, in most cases, until the need is urgent.

Concededly, investigation of each case is necessary. But it is evident that investigations are far too long drawn. At that it would be better if a few received pensions undeservedly, rather than to keep worthy old people waiting years for this aid.

Once the rolls are brought up to date, they must be kept there. It should not be difficult.

We are the people who spent a million for a book on how to influence people, and 225 billions in other directions to make sure.

British Health

No less remarkable than the moral strength of the English people seems to be their physical stamina. The fourth anniversary of England's entry into World War II finds her people in vigorous and healthy condition.

The death rate for the country for the first quarter of 1943 indicates exceptionally favorable health conditions. Mortality is running lower than in the same period in 1942, which marked a record. Thus England's health will this year again prove to be the best in its history.

Not only is this a remarkable record in itself, but it represents a gratifying change from the first and second years of the war. Noteworthy also is the health record of the present in comparison with conditions of World War I, when mortality increased as war progressed.

Success brings a problem of what to do with the loot. Captured artillery, of course, is turned on the foe. Now to put wheels under Etna.

Here's a Suggestion

Janitor service at the capitol in Montgomery, Ala., is provided by 50 prison trusties. There is in that section, as practically everywhere else, a serious shortage of farm labor, at this time particularly of cotton pickers.

Alabama state officials realize, most of them, they are not apt to be very efficient as pickers of cotton. Even those who, in their earlier years, were accustomed to that form of labor, have undoubtedly deteriorated in cotton field stamina and artistry through the years when they have labored at desks. Sedentary occupations do not conduce to productivity as field hands.

So, the Alabama officials have conceived a better plan. For one week each officeholder will do his own janitor work. Thus releasing the 50 prison trusties who will be sent into the cotton fields for that week. Undoubtedly, much more cotton will thus be gathered than if the officials themselves walked the rows.

It is a suggestion. Many a businessman, banker, merchant, lawyer, doctor, any one, could contribute to the harvesting of the crops far more by releasing his janitor for a few days in the fields, than by donning overalls and sun hat himself.

And it wouldn't hurt the same business or professional men to undertake the janitor's essential janitorial duties before and after office hours, for a few days or a week.

They say you'd hardly know Hitler Germany since the RAF modernizers went to work. Scarcely an edifice now standing in Hamburg is without cross-ventilation.

Milk Leads All Farm Crops

In every issue leading newspapers of the country devote space to recording prices of cattle, hogs, cotton, wheat, and corn, together with reports on supplies of each and conditions relating to their production. Should those conditions predicate excess or under supplies they merit news stories that often make the first page.

But milk is never mentioned in commercial reports and it is seldom mentioned in news stories, yet milk is the largest single source of farm cash income. It was fifteen per cent of all farm income in 1942—larger than cattle and hogs, twice that of cotton, three times wheat and five times corn. One out of every fifteen families in the United States is dependent upon milk for a livelihood.

Quoting statistics just issued by the Milk Industry Foundation of New York it is noted the farm cash incomes from seven major farm products in 1942 were as follows: milk, $2,332,253,000; cattle, $2,305,019,000; hogs, $2,197,873,000; poultry and eggs, $1,647,742,000; cotton and cottonseed, $1,458,669,000; wheat, $856,570,000; corn, $480,368,000.

It is noted that the North Atlantic and North Central states produce most of the country's milk, with Wisconsin leading all others, receiving a cash income from this source in 1942 of $278,771,000; New York was second with $221,963,000; Pennsylvania third at $138,160,000, and the great agricultural states of Minnesota, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Iowa following in order.

Georgia is quoted as receiving $14,446,000 for her milk in 1942, ranking fourth in the list of South Atlantic states, being topped by Maryland with $29,709,000; Virginia, $28,339,000 and North Carolina, $19,747,000. No comparative figures are given to show how the milk industry has increased in Georgia in recent years but it is well known Georgia dairying has grown rapidly in the past ten years as more farmers join the ranks of those who diversify their farming activities and learn by experience that a small herd of dairy cows can be handled economically and provide a year-round source of cash.

Georgia Editors Say:

SAFETY OF PILOTS

(From The Valdosta Times.)

General Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the United States Army Air Forces, in an outspoken article in the Woman's Home Companion, urges fathers and mothers of young men who have been selected for pilot training to disregard many of the wild rumors that get about in which are told unfounded stories of a high percentage of fatal air accidents in the course of the training programs.

General Arnold says "enemy agents spread wild rumors in the effort to break down confidence in American training and equipment." He insists that "no accident news is suppressed" and says that rumors of accident rates so high in training that newspapers have been ordered to report only a small percentage of such mishaps are utterly false. Tales of fighter planes from which it is impossible to bail out and bombers two highly powered for their framework likewise come from prolific poisons pens of enemy agents.

Actually, assures General Arnold, the anxiety mothers may feel when their sons are selected for pilot training is largely groundless. Before they are chosen, trainees have to pass "more physical, mental and aptitude tests than most mothers ever dreamed existed." As a consequence, says the general, "the Army believes that your son's chances of flying through this war and of coming home to tell about it, are tops." And he reveals that "ninety-five of every hundred of them are going through their long and arduous flight training program without so much as a sprained ankle or a barked shin."

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

REASON FOR DENUNCIATION WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—President Roosevelt's denunciation of a newspaper columnist for broadcasting stories to the effect that Secretary of State Hull has a secret hope of seeing Russia "bled white" was inspired not so much by a desire to correct an erroneous piece of information that has been widely circulated over the country.

If the implications of the charge went no further that that, the incident, in all probability, would have been allowed to go unnoticed. Both he and Mr. Hull would have ignored the gossipy statement, just as they have others of a similar or worse nature in the past.

The President obviously cannot take time out to answer every half-baked charge that is leveled against him or his administration. To do so would only dignify the critics and make a mountain out of nothing. By the very nature of things, he is compelled, for the most part, to rely on the sound common sense of the public to separate the false from the true.

But in a case involving the continued good relations with one of our principal war allies, the circumstances are quite different.

To properly understand the reasons prompting the President's action it is necessary to give a bit of background. Drew Pearson, author of the "Washington Merry-Go-Round," the offending columnist who finds himself so coldly castigated, is generally understood to be a close friend of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, who was recently ousted on complaints of Secretary Hull.

CRITICAL FOR YEARS Welles for some time has been suspected of feeding Pearson with information on State Department affairs which did not reflect too well on Secretary Hull. The columnist has been extremely critical of the State Department head for several years.

Now what Pearson may have said as an independent commentator is one thing. But if his statements tend to reflect information given him by Undersecretary Welles, that is quite a different story. In view of the fight between Hull and Welles and the close relationship between Welles and Pearson, the assumption is easily drawn that the columnist's charges were based on information given him by Welles.

No one accepts this as entirely true yet. Mr. Welles has a right to be heard from before judgment is rendered. But the implications were enough to force the President to act.

WHEREIN THE DANGER So long as the charge went unanswered, there was danger of the Russians, who know of the relationship between Welles and Pearson, assuming that the columnist was speaking for the undersecretary. Embassy officials here in Washington may be counted upon to keep themselves informed on such fine points as these. To say the least, it all tended to put Mr. Hull in an extremely embarrassing light.

Our relations with Russia are such we cannot afford to have other suspicions planted in their minds. They seem to be suspicious enough of us as it is. The failure of Marshal Stalin to appear at any of the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences thus far should be suitable evidence on the score, though there are mitigating circumstances, of course.

Viewed from this background, there is ample justification for what the President did. It was not that he was guided by any sudden fit of anger, as stated by some critical commentators. Those who have taken this slant on the case are deficient in a capacity for looking beyond the end of their noses. Mr. Roosevelt was merely dealing in open diplomacy. He wanted to assure the Russians that regardless of the sources of the columnist's information the charges were entirely false.

SOLD BAD BILL In extenuation of Mr. Pearson's unhappy plight, it can only be said that he was sold a bad bill of goods. That happens to every newspaperman at some time or other. Personally he is a capable and successful journalist.

Any look at Mr. Hull's record would seem to be enough to convince anyone he is not the Russian hater the charges made him out to be. It was he who in 1933 made the official recommendation to the President that Soviet Russia be recognized by the United States. That recommendation was subsequently followed.

WORKED FOR GOOD WILL Whatever Mr. Hull may feel of Communism as a philosophy of government—and his views in that respect do not differ from those of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill—he esteems his own record of promoting good will and a better understanding between the United States and the Soviets. He has labored steadily for maintaining these relations.

Now, while we are at war on the side of Russia, to have this record smeared by charges based on no documented evidence naturally grieves him to the point of exasperation. He minced no words, therefore, in denouncing the rumormongers.

But despite the severity of Mr. Hull's words, the President evidently thought he did not go far enough. The international implications of the charges were such he felt they should be branded openly and bluntly for what they were.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Tax Return Complexities.

Have you looked into this matter of estimated federal income tax returns you've got to make September 15? That is, you have to make 'em if you are married and made $3,500 this year, or more, or, single and made $2,700.

That is, from salary or wages. If your income is derived from other sources you've got to make the estimated return if your 1943 income exceeded $100. That's right, just one hundred bucks.

Making these returns is a complicated process. So complicated it is almost necessary to hire a CPA to make 'em out for you. And the tragedy is it need not have been complicated at all. The blame rests either upon congress, upon the "experts" of the treasury department, or on both.

I'll Try to Explain.

Having paid two visits to the offices of the Collector of Internal Revenue anent this September 15 return, having made out my own form and had it approved by one of the gentlemanly assisters of the public at those offices, I'll try to explain in simple terms what you have to do.

First of all you have to figure out what your income will be for 1943, when the final check as of December 31 is made. Done that? Right.

Then you subtract lawful exemptions in the first of the two columns at the right of your printed form. This is the income tax column. The second column is for victory tax, but let's leave that out of our calculations for a few minutes.

Having subtracted all lawful exemptions you then subtract 10 per cent as your earned income credit. Six per cent of the balance is your normal tax.

Next you go back to the total as it was before taking off the earned income credit. The first $2,000 of this net income must pay a surtax of 13 per cent. Which you figure out. Anything above $2,000, net, up to $4,000 is subject to an addtional surtax of 6 per cent. Got all that?

Well, work it out and the result is the amount of income tax you've got to pay for 1943.

Now, wait a minute. There's that victory tax.

The victory tax is 5 per cent. And the net income subject to this tax will be different, probably, than the net income subject to income tax. Because there are some exemptions, such as interest payments and contributions, you can take on income tax that are not applicable to victory tax. Is that clear?

Well, you work out the total victory tax you've got to pay for the year, at 5 per cent. However, you can cut that total down by 40 per cent, or by 2 of the 5 per cent exacted if you understand better that way, provided you have put out that much money during the year either in life insurance premiums, net debt reduction or purchase of war bonds.

Now, you have the net of your victory tax. Add the income tax and the victory tax together and you find out how much, all told, you'll have to pay on 1943 income.

Now take a look back at your records and see how much income tax you paid on 1942 income. Whichever is the larger is the one you'll use in your figuring from now on.

What You Have Paid.

Now you want to find out how much you've already paid, this year, or will have paid by December 31.

Take those two instalments on the 1942 tax you paid on March 15 and June 15 last. Set them both down on your scratch pad.

Figure out how much was withheld from your pay envelope or salary checks as victory tax for the first six months of this year.

Figure out how much will have been withheld on that withholding tax which went into effect on July 1, by the time December 31 arrives.

Add these all together—the March 15 and June 15 tax payments, the six months of victory tax and the six months of withholding tax and the total is what you will have paid by the end of the year.

Subtract this total from what you will owe, and the difference is the additional amount you must pay Uncle Sam September 15. That is, you must pay half of that difference. The other half can be paid by December 15.

On December 15, too, you can file a revised estimated return, if you discover your figures filed on September 15 weren't quite right.

One More Obligation.

And, by March 15 next, you'll have to file your final return for the 1943 income. If it differs from your final estimate, made either September 15 or December 15, you'll then pay the difference or get a credit on your next payment.

And, on March 15, you have to pay 12 1-2 per cent of your smaller tax for the two years, 1942 or 1943. That is, if your tax is more than $62.50 for that year. And another 12 1-2 per cent on March 15, 1945.

Then, if you still live and are still sane enough to appreciate blessings, you'll have caught up and will, henceforth, be on a current basis. Except for that annual, September 15 and December 15, matter of estimated returns. Unless congress acts, they are with us from now on.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

A Story 26 Years Old NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—This piece deals with an incident 26 years old and is written to correct the record and for the comfort of any legitimate news reporter who may find his word outweighed by the prestige of a high-ranking officer or official on a straight issue of truthfulness. It is no part of the current dispute between President Roosevelt and Mr. Hull, the secretary of state, on one hand, and the Columnist Drew Pearson, on the other. Pearson is one of the originators of the backstairs school of political and diplomatic journalism in Washington, an adaptation of the gent's-room school which began in the dives of New York during prohibition, and ethical newspaper reporters have no obligation to defend him.

With this preamble let me get to my story.

On June 21, 1917, the United Press carried, and its clients in the United States published, a story from the American base at Queenstown, Ireland, reporting that an American destroyer had fought a U-boat and that "according to the belief expressed by the crew" had rammed and sunk the enemy. It said further that if the submarine was not rammed it probably was finished off by another antisubmarine device, namely, the ashcan or depth-charge which then was a new and secret weapon.

The story was released without restriction by a lieutenant commander on the staff of Vice Admiral William S. Sims in the presence of the post censor, a lieutenant commander of the British Royal Navy. The censor, in turn, passed, stamped and initialed the story, in duplicate and it cleared through the regular telegraph system in the local post office.

Later Denied Two days later the Associated Press published a dispatch from its own Queenstown correspondent reporting that Admiral Sims, on being questioned about the U. P.'s story had denounced it as "absolutely false."

Admiral Sims then placed the young U. P. correspondent upon open arrest in custody of Consul Hathaway until transportation could be arranged back to London and he was sent out, accused of faking, and publicly humiliated.

The destroyer in question was the U. S. S. O'Brien but for reasons of secrecy the name was not mentioned.

There the case has stood ever since.

Recently, however, I got access to official records of the Navy and obtained information which I herewith present with some personal satisfaction because I was the reporter.

On June 20, three days before Sims said "the story is absolutely false," he officially reported to the Navy Department: "It is reasonably certain now that the O'Brien destroyed the submarine mentioned." He then gave details of the encounter, closing with the remark that unfortunately this was a case in which the exact result could not be determined.

Officer's Report As further evidence that Admiral Sims uttered a deliberate falsehood in his statement to the A. P., I cite from a confidential report of the commanding officer of the O'Brien, C. A. Blakely, dated June 19 and addressed to the commander-in-chief, coast of Ireland, entitled, "Report of contact with enemy submarine."

"At 4:21 in the afternoon of June 16, 1917, in the approximate position 12 miles south of Ballycotten light, convoying the S. S. Elysia, a periscope was sighted broad on the starboard bow, distant about 800 yards," it read. "Speed was immediately increased to 20 knots and the ship was headed toward the periscope which about this time disappeared. After a very short period the periscope was again sighted dead ahead, distant about 100 yards. A few seconds later the lookout in the foretop called out that he saw the bulk of the submarine in the water passing aft close to our starboard side. He stated later that he thought we were going to ram it. He could clearly see the submarine and watched it gradually disappear below the surface until it was abaft the deck house. At this moment, a depth charge was let go and it was believed that the depth charge came within the prescribed limit where serious damage results from the explosion."

The commander of the operations office, R. Watkins Grubb, added an indorsement of this report of the O'Brien's skipper, stating that about three hours later, the Jessamine passed through a large patch of heavy-smelling oil approximately the same position.

And, further, on June 27, Vice Admiral Lewis Bayley, of the British navy, commander-in-chief at Queenstown, reported to the secretary of the admiralty in London: "This appears to be a case where serious damage to the submarine was very probable. The O'Brien was very skillfully handled and, I consider, deserves recognition. In addition to Jessamine, Cushing (another American destroyer) found a quantity of oil on the surface near this spot, though unaware of the encounter with the O'Brien."

Admiral Sims went to his grave without making the slightest gesture toward rehabilitating a reputation which he had been willing to destroy. This was no question of opinion or interpretation. It was a straight issue of truth or falsehood, honest reporting or wanton fakery.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND A number of persons, no doubt some of those characterized by John L. Lewis as "poker-playing, whisky-drinking evil old men," have got me to one side, as we say, and asked me about imbibing conditions in England in wartime.

As a reporter, I naturally asked a few questions on this subject and even engaged a few guinea pigs. The answers are enough to break a rum pot's heart and to cause even the most temperate of men to quail and grow pale.

They haven't made any whisky in England in a little more than two years. The boys are making alcohol just as we are in this country. The supply is quite low. It is not on sale by the bottle simply because there isn't enough of it.

The proof is down to 75 or, as the English term it, 25 under proof. In my research on the subject I was told by one of my guinea pigs that one had to spend about $12 to attain a mild glow. That may be so.

It may be had only by the drink and a drink costs an even $1. The usual American jigger contains one ounce and a half. The English jigger contains only one ounce. A half ounce, which is about what one man-sized eyedropper holds, costs two shillings and sixpence. The average person ordering a drink wishes to see the bottom of his glass covered, said one of my volunteer guinea pigs, and therefore the usual order is for a double whisky. This costs five shillings which, at current exchange, is $1. It is still a half-ounce less than the average American jigger.

Hence, as my guinea pig said, if a person wishes to attain a mild glow on this low-proof scotch, he must spend several dollars. And even then, as my guinea pig said, he may lose the glow if a mild breeze springs up or if he breaks into a mild perspiration.

The supply is very low and while they believe it will last out the war, they are not sure.

As for beer, that beverage still is very popular and still plentiful. It is, however, a bit on the weak side. My guinea pig said that he doubts if many, except the old-timers with large capacities, could attain a warm friendly feeling out of the beer.

Due to the large number of soldiers, of all nations, and to the fondness which martial men of all ages have had for a glass of beer, there is an occasional shortage in this field but it is not as severe as the one in our own country.

BEHAVIORISM As a newspaperman who saw the noble experiment from its inception to its demise, and as one who has studied the dry drinking statistics of the Scandinavian countries and of England, I was interested in the behavior of the soldiers and the peoples in England.

I saw enough to demonstrate to me once more that strict, legal control, with specified hours for opening and specified license privileges, is the best way to handle the problem of alcoholic beverages.

I know the product of prohibition liquor was many times as sordid and as corrupting of men and politics as is any form of strict, legal control. Which, of course, is not faultless.

The Scandinavian countries, once the hardest-drinking nations in the world have attained temperance and have absolutely eliminated alcohol as a problem by education and strict control. Plus, of course, high prices.

American parents need not worry about their sons in England. England has very strict controls. And high prices. I saw no drunken soldiers or civilians beyond the usual negligible percentage found in any group in any country.

In England, as in and around American army camps, there are more soft drinks sold than hard, more "cokes" than beer.

The American soldier is in the army what he was out of it—he is the kid next door—the boy that called on your daughter—the boy who had the old jalopy but who now flies a Fortress. I am glad the campaign that existed for a while—to picture him as a drunk—has faded away in the light of the truth.

Any person will respond to common sense and education. This is particularly true of Americans. The American soldier is what his home and his church and schooling made him. He is all right.

This may be as good a time as any to kill the story which went the rounds for a while that one reason for the success of the German army was that it was a "dry army." The German army never ceased to issue rations of beer and wine and it still does. Letters taken off dead German soldiers complain of the quality of their beer.

The plain truth is, I think, that the world and its people get better, not worse. The world inches forward slowly toward the light. We can't make it go faster by fiat or by exhortation. We move as we learn. Sale of liquor was no novelty to our soldiers at home. Therefore it did not excite them abroad.

America's control setup, with all its faults is, in my opinion, better than the old saloon days and the old racketeering prohibition days. In Georgia the state administration let some of the old gang get in. They ought to be cleaned out, as they still are giving trouble. Let the control be strict and let us preach the truth—that alcohol in excess is harmful and that temperance is the aim and objective.

At any rate, what I started out to do was answer a great many questions about conditions in England. This one, on the control and regulation of drinking, was one of them. As such, and only as such, is it presented.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

Now that our boys are in Africa, and our job includes feeding the Arabs, propagandists are telling us that we owe a great debt to Arabian culture. The Arabs, they say, gave us our alphabet and our mathematics, and we couldn't operate at all if they hadn't invented that unit of no value called the cipher.

Well, it is all a myth—a fairy tale based on ignorance or misunderstanding.

For centuries the Arabs lived on their great peninsula, hemmed in by desert and sea so it was like living on an island. They had little contact with the outside world. They were wild desert tribesmen, most of them, and had little knowledge or culture.

Then religion united them; they went raiding on a grand scale, and their camel cavalry and fanatic zeal and scorn of death enabled them to conquer an empire. They seemed to own the earth.

They had never known anything but hardship and poverty, and they were astounded by the wealth and culture and learning they found in Persia and Egypt and other lands. When the conquests were finished, they resolved to learn things. Like the Japs, they absorbed the culture of more advanced people.

At first they kept their racial stock pure, but it couldn't last. They found wives among the conquered and blood lines were thoroughly mixed.

The conquered had to adopt the Moslem religion or pay tribute, and to read the Koran they had to learn Arabic. Thus Arabic became the common language of all, and anybody who spoke it and accepted the Islam faith was called an Arabian—as all races here are called American. Black, brown, yellow or white, Persian, Syrian, Copt, Berber, Ethiop, Jew or Greek—all were Moslems ruled by the caliph and therefore Arabians.

From this mixture came the "Arabian" culture. Pure Arabs from the peninsula of Arabia may have contributed nothing at all. The first Arabian treatise on medicine, according to Hitti, was translated into Arabic by a Jew, from a Greek tract composed by a Christian priest in Alexandria. That gives you an idea.

Maybe this won't interest you, but our adventure in Africa has made us all "Arab conscious," and you might as well get your facts straight.

Love,
DAD.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"Bill was smart—he refused to take a vacation this year."

Your Columnist Helps the Coroner In No Mystery.

Some time ago I was invited to serve on a coroner's jury. I accepted gladly, for the sake of a new experience. I'm glad I did.

Many of the mystery stories I have perused at the midnight hour as part of my study of criminology deal deeply with inquests and the questioning of witnesses, and sometimes such questioning reveals the true criminal. But not often, because the inquest usually occurs in the third chapter and they'd have to fill up the rest of the book with crossword puzzles if they hoped to sell it for $2.

I had hoped this inquest would involve a mysterious murder which had baffled the city homicide squad, a private detective imported from New York and seven famous toxicologists who could not identify the poison, if any. In such case I could ask certain questions which would solve the mystery and make the professionals hang their heads in shame.

But no. The central figure of this investigation, the corpus delicti, as the law books say, had been a minor industrial employe, working on the night shift. Several friends saw him, apparently well and going strong at 10:45 p. m. At 11:27 one of them had occasion to ask him something and found him on the floor of his office—dead. No wounds, no poison in his stomach, no evidence of an enemy. He was nearing 70. The examining physicians said it looked like cerebral hemorrhage—and that was the verdict.

No plot for a brand new mystery story there.

Work for the Coroner.

I discovered that the coroner's job in a county of Fulton's population is no mere pastime. The more people, the more murders and suicides and other fatalities. As I understand it, a coroner digs into all cases where somebody is found dead and there are no eyewitnesses of what caused the fatality. Your old Uncle John, who has been ailing for years, fails to get up in the morning and you go to his room and find he has passed out, apparently peacefully, sometime in the night. But nobody was with him when he died.

The family usually objects to an inquest in such circumstances. They had expected Uncle John to pass away like that some time—his heart had been bad for years. So why make a public issue of it. His doctor knows.

The law thinks differently—and has for centuries. Because Uncle John may not have died from that bum heart. You may have poisoned him for his life insurance or because you have grown tired of feeding him and having him loaf around the house. Or maybe your wife did. She was the one who had to put up with his queer ways. Naturally, under such circumstances, you'd prefer no inquiry. But the law wants to know.

So the coroner is notified and he—in Fulton county it is "she" at this time—goes to work. She is called at any hour and responds. She looks over the corpus delicti in search of wounds or whatnot. The county physician—the "medical examiner" in New York crime mysteries—arrives and makes a technical examination. One of the homicide squad of the police department may be called in. And a photographer, who makes a shot of the principal as found—unless he has been moved. So many people are apt to pick Uncle John off the floor and give him a fresh suit of pajamas or nightshirt before notifying the police. Which is frowned upon by the law.

Plenty of Detail.

If an inquest appears necessary witnesses must be summoned—the last people who saw the deceased alive, close relatives who knew about his health and whether he had enemies or had received threats, the policemen who were called in, the family doctor, the county physician, perhaps the embalmer. Autopsies are rarely conducted. They must be authorized by the superior court or the deceased family or other authorities, in case murder is suspected. But most apparently peaceful deaths without witnesses result in a verdict of "death from natural causes," quoting the physician's opinion. Usually they are right.

If it looks like a "slight case of murder" to quote a Damon Runyon title, an inquest becomes more important. More witnesses are called and questioned. Experts are called in. The coroner digs deeply into all surrounding circumstances.

The verdict of the coroner's jury in such a case usually is "death by the hand of a person or persons unknown." It is not conclusive. The case is still up to the grand jury for indictment and afterward—if the alleged criminal is available—the trial jury. But the verdict of the coroner's jury of six good men and true carries a lot of weight.

Personally, I was greatly impressed, in my first experience, by the manner and ability of the coroner—in this instance Mrs. Paul Donehoo.

As the wife of Paul Donehoo, the blind coroner who had attained national fame, she had assisted him as secretary and runner-down of clues until she knew as much about the job as Paul did—and maybe more. Because, in addition to the ears and brains and legal knowledge of Paul she had eyes. After Paul, my good friend, died she was elected by the people to succeed him. And though this is no political column—I have never been offered a bribe more iniquitous than a soda fount—I would like to say Mrs. Donehoo seems to know her job.

As I remarked to a friend on the jury I am certainly glad she wasn't my teacher in the sixth grade. If I may be permitted to glide into personalities, Mrs. Donehoo is such a person as would make the corpus delicti exceedingly sorry he couldn't wake up and join in the proceedings. But a martinet. She takes no back talk. She listens patiently to no extended story of what I said to Maggie and Maggie said to me back in the fall of '39. I made up my mind that if in case I ever became an important figure in a coroner's inquest I'd rather be the corpse than a material witness.

As to "sitting on the corpse." That is not required. That is, the jury merely views the defunct subject. The law demands that, so the six good men, accompanied by the county physician, file into another room—usually at a mortician's palace—and "view."

In 1917, he became president of the United States corporation, the Roxana Petroleum Company, leaving that position in 1922 to become vice president of the Marland Oil Company, where he remained until 1928. He was also president in 1927 and 1928 of the Hudson Bay Marland Oil Company, of Canada.

Cromwell Sues Doris For Limited Divorce

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 3.—(AP) James N. R. Cromwell, former United States minister to Canada, instituted limited divorce proceedings against his tobacco-heiress wife, Doris Duke Cromwell, today.

Cromwell alleged Mrs. Cromwell deserted him in May, 1940, and that the desertion has been "wilfull, continued and obstinate."

Should a limited divorce be granted, a responsible source in the attorney general's office said, Cromwell's curtesy rights in his wife's real estate would be protected.

The Cromwells were married February 13, 1935.

Avoid Haste In Final Peace, Hoover Urges

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 3. (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover tonight declared "victory is now inevitable," and said the United Nations should refrain from too much haste in drawing up final peace settlements after the war.

In a speech for delivery before the foreign policy association and the University of Minnesota, Hoover declared "the world must have time to cool off and recover a balance of judgment if a lasting peace is to be made.

Violent Emotions .

"When firing ceases the world will be filled with violent emotions. There will be white-hot hate and indignation at the enemy for having brought the world to this state. The air will be filled with vengeance. This is no atmosphere for long-view statesmanship, which must distinguish between guilty leadership and misled peoples," he continued.

The former President said that if the world had had five years in which to consider the treaty of Vienna in 1814 and the treaty of Versailles in 1919 those documents never would have been signed. He recalled that "it was six years from the victory of Yorktown and the constitution of the United States," and said "it was time well spent."

Declaring that Americans "for over 170 years have fought on a thousand battlefields and always that men might be more free and have peace," Hoover added: "Their million graves demand of us that we do not fail them in the halls of peacemaking."

Four Peace Steps.

He proposed that peace be arranged in four steps:

One, agreement before firing ceases that a few leading nations among the Allies be appointed joint managers of peace and that there will not be the usual armistice or general peace conference.

Two, agreement before victory that these peace managers shall impose provisional peace terms on defeated nations.

Three, that nothing else be done until expiration of a transition period of several years "in which the world can cool off."

Four, creation of "some sort of world institution to replace the managers and preserve peace."

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. The more the better. But, please, keep 'em short.

HE BELIEVES!

Editor, Constitution: I have just finished reading your editorial about the professor of the Rebecca Consolidated school and his dog, who followed behind his master and dropped seed in an open furrow correctly. I don't like your article at all. Just don't cause you did not see this dog do you think you do not believe it. The average city dog might not know about farming because he is not educated along these lines. Many dogs can do things man can't do. A bloodhound can follow a man's track in some cases 24 hours after they are made and never makes a mistake. Many other things are remarkable. Besides, this is dog days.

I have lived a good while. I used to say when I drove a "T" model car, that an auto would never be any good; then an airplane, radio, wireless, television, on down the line, but I have decided now that there ain't no such word as ain't.

So don't come telling the professor this dog can't drop a few garden seed correctly, for I don't doubt it a bit.

CHARLES N. JAMES.
Avondale Estates, Ga.

HE DOESN'T.

Editor, Constitution: Thank you for the editorial on the "dog story" from Rochelle. I have read so many "tall tales" about animals around Rochelle that I no longer read a news story with a Rochelle headline. I wonder if I have been missing any news.

Our correspondent could have added that the owner of the dog was sitting in the shade gnawing a bone while the dog "correctly spaced" the seed in the furrow. That would have made it a real news story.

C. F. RUSTIN.

TRUST DRAFT BOARDS.

Editor, Constitution: It is really too bad that this country cannot figure out some way to punish the draft dodgers that McIntosh county sergeant spoke of. Too bad that it isn't possible to make everybody suffer the trivial hardships offered by the armed forces. Too bad that we can't raise an insurmountable barrier between them and our women.

Sergeant, did you ever stop to think and realize that some of our greatest men, some of our greatest characters, have been crippled.

Yes; I know what you are thinking, that I have misinterpreted your letter. You forget to realize that our selective service is in the hands of trained men. Why not leave this induction deciding up to them? Can you show me one draft board that will accept any "cooked-up, pitiful story" without a complete investigation?

You have condemned too large a group of men to be held without condemnation yourself. As man to man, I don't believe you have proved yourself such a big man after all, but a boy with a lot to learn.

About the woman situation? Why not leave that up to the girls themselves?

SERGEANT G. R. GRANT,
U. S. Paratroops.
Fort Benning, Ga.

APPEAL TO WOMEN.

Editor, Constitution: The time is here for women throughout the world to form one great organization to solve the war problem—for all time.

It may be an idle dream, a foolish idea, but we as the mothers of the race must band together and help in some way to stop the frightful destruction of our men.

Our Heavenly Father will help us in this humanitarian undertaking if we will invoke His guidance and ask Him to bless this tremendous task that we are hoping will take effect.

Women begin thinking about it—state your ideas, write to the editor of your paper, but do something, it makes no difference who you are, where you live, if you are in sympathy with this idea. Do so now.

JOSEPHINE REAVES.
East Point, Ga.

THE CRACKERS.

Editor, Constitution: We are genuinely grateful for the recognition recently accorded the efforts of the 1943 Crackers on your editorial page.

Our baseball club was a disappointment to all of us but the splendid support of the Cracker fans makes us very humble. They are real champions. This kind of support can be found only in Atlanta and it is our earnest desire to give our fans the kind of a baseball team they so richly deserve—the best.

EARL MANN,
President, Atlanta Baseball Corporation.

MOUNTBATTEN.

Editor, Constitution: We will hear a lot more of Lord Mountbatten, recently appointed to an important command in the east. He is a great-grandson of Queen Victoria. Her youngest daughter, the Princess Beatrice, married Prince Henry, of Battenberg. The family lived in England and became thoroughly English, and at the time of World War I changed their German name to Mountbatten. Lord Louis, whom we hear of today, is a grandson of the Princess Beatrice.

And what a remarkable family, old Victoria, who died in 1901, after a reign of more than 60 years, left four sons and five daughters.

Four of her descendants have been Kings of England.

Her oldest daughter married Prince Frederick, of Prussia, afterwards the Emperor Frederick, of Germany, who was the father of Kaiser William of World War I.

Her second daughter married the Duke of Hesse, and was the mother of Princess Alix, of Hesse, who married Prince Nicholas. She was killed with her husband and all her children by the Russians in 1918. Her descendants fought on both sides of World War I, and are fighting on both sides of World War II. W. M. JAMES.

Quisling's Sports Leader Is Slain

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Charles Hoff, one-time holder of the world pole vault record and for the past three years director of the Quisling sport movement in Norway, was found murdered near Oslo, the Swedish press reported today.

Hoff was regarded here as one of Vidkun Quisling's closest collaborators.

Forty-one years old, Hoff set his pole vault record in 1922. He also was an outstanding 400 and 800-meter runner. After a tour of the United States he returned to Norway as a sports writer.

Big Road Program Seen For North Carolina Soon

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 3.—(AP) The largest highway expansion in the state's history was envisioned today by Governor J. M. Broughton, who said the program might start before the war's end.

The $35,000,000 in state funds alone could make the program the largest since the $50,000,000 appropriation many years ago that marked the real beginning of the state's primary road system.

In addition, about $11,000,000 in federal funds have been earmarked for North Carolina, leaving only a few millions less than the record. The federal government has indicated that it intends to continue its road building policy.

Learns of Kin's Death After 30-Year Silence

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 3. (AP)—A silence of 30 years in the life of George Medicis was broken here today for his family with the receipt by his brother, John, of a letter telling of his death in performance of his duty in the American Merchant Marine.

So far as members of the family know here, Medicis never learned of his father's death in 1918 and never touched money deposited from the father's estate to his credit in an Opelousas bank.

He joined the Navy 33 years ago and the last word from him was a letter received by his brother in 1913. They were never able to trace him after that.

Czech General Sounds Hussite Call to Battle

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—General Sergej Ingr, commander in chief of the Czech army, sounded the old Hussite battle cry, "Beat them, kill them, leave none alive," in a broadcast from London today urging Czechs to prepare for the day of uprising against the Germans.

"Everyone should look around now for the most appropriate weapon in order to harm the Germans most," Ingr said. "If there is no firearm at hand, any other kind of weapon that cuts, stabs or hits should be prepared and hidden."

The general called the coming year a "year of victory."

FDR Tells Emory Land To Operate N. Y. Plant

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt directed war shipping administrator Emory S. Land today to take over and operate the plant of the Atlantic Basin Iron Works, Inc., at Brooklyn.

The company, which repairs and converts ships, was accused by the War Labor Board of failing to obey a WLB order for maintaining of union membership and arbitration of grievances.

The Board submitted the case to the President earlier today, recommending government seizure of the plant. In his executive order, the chief executive said that there was a threatened interruption of operations of the plant and that "the war effort will be unduly impeded or delayed by such interruption."

Wages, Salaries, Show 31 Pct. Gain Over 1942

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Americans received $56,761,000,000 in wages and salaries during the first seven months of this year, Commerce Secretary Jones reported tonight.

This is 31 per cent higher than the amount earned in the same period last year and 87 per cent above earnings in the corresponding period of 1929.

In July alone, wages and salaries aggregated $8,413,000,000, an increase of $8,000,000 over the preceding month and $1,720,000,000 above July of last year.

For the seven-month 1943 period total income payments to individuals were put at $78,913,000,000, a 27 per cent increase over the corresponding period a year ago and 65 per cent above the $47,819,000,000 figures in 1929.

Bellboy Cleared In Hotel Death Of WAC Guest

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Police today released Robert Wolfington, 22-year-old hotel bellboy, who had been in custody since Tuesday for questioning in connection with the slaying of Corporal Maoma Little Ridings, 32, Camp Atterbury WAC who was killed Saturday night in a downtown hotel.

Declaring that all discrepancies in Wolfington's story had been cleared up, police requested dismissal of a vagrancy charge against the bellboy in municipal court and absolved him of connection with the baffling crime.

His release turned attention once again to the mysterious "woman in black" whom another bellboy, Alfred Bayne Jr., said he saw sitting on the bed in Corporal Ridings' room several hours prior to the finding of her half-nude and bloody body.

Detectives were holding Robert de Armond, 40-year-old hotel employe who once served a sentence for raping a 10-year-old girl in Franklin county, for further questioning.

Slain WAC Buried At Warm Springs

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Sept. 3. (AP)—Corporal Maoma Little Riding, 32, Warm Springs WAC who was slain in Indianapolis last Saturday, has been buried with military honors.

Several hundred relatives and friends crowded the Warm Springs Baptist church yesterday for funeral services conducted by the Rev. H. O. Fowler, of Manchester, Ga.

At the cemetery, a squad of eight Fort Benning soldiers fired a volley of shots over the grave and a bugler sounded taps. The Women's Army Corps was represented by a WAC escort who accompanied the body from Indianapolis.

All 17 Schools In State Eligible In Nurse Drive

Seventeen schools of nursing in Georgia are accredited and eligible to receive funds from the United States Public Health Service, Carrie M. Spurgeon, state educational supervisor of Georgia schools of nursing, said yesterday.

Miss Spurgeon said she wished to correct the impression given by a Washington story that only a few would receive funds for helping students in the drive to teach more nurses. She said it was only a matter of time until all 17 schools received funds and emphasized the fact that Georgia is high among the states in developing the United States Cadet Nurses Corps program.

The schools, as listed by Miss Spurgeon, follow:

Crawford Long, Georgia Baptist, Grady (white and Negro), Emory University hospital, Piedmont and St. Joseph's, in Atlanta; University hospital (white and Negro), in Augusta; City hospital (white and Negro), in Columbus; Macon hospital, Middle Georgia hospital and Oglethorpe infirmary, in Macon; State hospital, in Milledgeville; St. Joseph's and Warren A. Candler, in Savananh.

Augusta Soldier Killed By Hit-Run Autoist

WESTFIELD, Mass., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Technical Corporal Claude Morris, 25, of Augusta, Ga., stationed at Barnes Airport here, died today at Bradley Field, Windsor Locks, Conn., the victim, police reported, of a hit-run automobile.

Police Captain George T. Hickson said Morris was found lying in a highway by a passing motorist who notified Army authorities. The soldier's injuries included a fractured skull.

Prisoners

who baked a cake and carried it down to the young men, and he told of the farmer who chipped in with the Army guards and rode from his farm into town to buy cartons of cigarets for the men of Rommel's desert army.

The soldiers of the prison camp, whose duty it is to guard the German prisoners, had anecdotes to tell of them—strange ways of the German boys that were unlike their own.

One sergeant told of the German, with a smattering of English, who suggested:

"We should not fight against each other. We should get together and fight these Jap."

But the soldiers have a healthy respect for the danger inherent in holding 500 enemy soldiers in our territory, and they watch with bayonets fixed, eyes alert for any sign of attempt to escape.

Yet they feel that these men do not wish to escape. A private reported a German telling him that he had "a bellyful of war," and certainly the young men in the field seemed to have no thought beyond the work they were doing.

Shouts Ring Clearer.

The sky had clouded as they worked and a thin splattering of rain came down refreshingly on the skin sticky hot from the Georgia sun. The pine ridges became bluer and the clumps of high grass along the boundaries of the fields a more intense green. And a certain freedom and lightness seemed to come upon the young warriors who had met defeat in battle. Their shouts rang clearer, they laughed more gaily at their jokes that we could not understand.

Yet the moment remembered is when the little group stood in the corner of the field pointing.

"Phro-po-ghanda — phro-po-ghanda—" they called.

That stands out clearly.

And the words of a young girl standing with the ragged crowd of townfolk along the main street of the little town of Oglethorpe:

"It makes you feel strange," she said. "Strange—I cannot explain it.—Queer somehow."

White Cross Home May Be Relocated

Relocation of the White Cross hospital was approved yesterday by the city board of zoning appeals and will go to council Monday for action of that body.

The hospital will be moved from 830 Ponce de Leon avenue to 1070 Spring street, N. W., if final approval is given the proposal. Dr. H. N. Alford, former member of city council, is director of the institution.

A petition to move the Hill Street Baptist church from Hill street to a location on Logan street near the intersection of Logan and Hill streets was adversed by the board because of the narrowness of the street and the size of the lot on which it was proposed to locate the new church.

Plans for Italy Blow Laid Over Year Ago

By DON WHITEHEAD.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Allied landing in Italy today was the fruition of plans laid well over a year ago in many parts of the world.

In the words of an official spokesman, "don't get the idea that this is a new campaign or a new 'second front.' That started a long time ago when we first came to North Africa."

The special communique announcing British and Canadian troops had pushed across the narrow strait of Messina from Sicily whose conquest was finished only 17 days ago, emphasized the same point with the words, "Allied forces under the command of General Eisenhower have continued their advance."

Air Force Big Factor.

Most significant perhaps was the fact that General Dwight D. Eisenhower began the actual smash at Hitler's so-called "European fortress" with by far the biggest, most powerful, most versatile, single air force ever massed to support an army in the field—an air force whose leaders could claim to have reduced the once-dreaded German air force as a vital factor in further operations anywhere in the Mediterranean area.

This air force has given southern Italy a long "softening up" process with special emphasis on the destruction of airdromes, from which the Luftwaffe could menace an invasion fleet and landing armies, and rail and other communications by which the enemy could dispatch reinforcements, weapons and supplies to any threatened point.

300-Mile Stretch Hit.

Soon the air opposition over the toe of Italy where the Eighth Army is now battling for a foothold had virtually vanished and long-range American heavy and medium bombers stabbed with lightning-like raids at varied targets over a 300-mile stretch from Naples to Pisa, choosing now a railway junction, freight yard or an airfield to bomb just when the Nazis had massed their overtaxed defensive fighter strength to defend another point.

Planners of the drive onto the Italian mainland didn't even wait to clean up the mess that was once the proud city of Messina where the Allied conquest of Sicily was completed.

Within an incredibly short period, the Allies were able to concentrate enough men, supplies and shipping to continue their operations, this time against the mainland itself.

Heavy Bombardment

They didn't wait to clear Messina's harbor of sunken ships, drowned barges and gaunt skeltons of small boats which were smashed by the heavy air bombardments while the enemy was retreating from the island in the face of the powerful American and Allied drives.

When the armada of invasion craft moved across the Messina strait under the starlit sky with the flashes of guns sparkling like fireflies against the dark hills on either side of the water, it was sent over loaded with men and supplies brought up and prepared for the task in only 17 days.

With the Allied air force and artillery pounding the mainland and neutralizing the enemy's counter-fire from batteries hidden in the hills, it was no risk to men or equipment to concentrate small boats along the west shores of the strait for the invasion move.

Fierce Fight Seen

Without the Allied aerial superiority, however, it would have been almost impossible.

The spokesmen here, warning against excessive optimism, cautioned that the Germans without doubt will wage a fierce fight for Italy and "we will lose men and materials" as the fight progresses. To support the ground forces, the German command will probably send whatever air re-inforcements he can spare to Italy.

But the Allies still will rule the air over the Italian battlefields and will pound airfields steadily until the German air force again retreats.

Search Without Permit, Mrs. de Marigny Says

NASSAU, Bahamas, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Nancy Oakes de Marigny said today that police "forced their way in" without showing a search warrant when Alfred de Marigny's home was searched Wednesday.

De Marigny is awaiting trial on charges of murdering Sir Harry Oakes, Mrs. de Marigny's wealthy father.

"I was at home alone and they forced their way in," she said. "It was my understanding that under such circumstances representatives of the defense should be present. I asked for time to phone my lawyer but the request was disregarded."

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Pels Look Good As another regular season in the Southern league draws to a close, speculation concerns the playoff between Nashville and New Orleans.

Personally, I will take New Orleans to beat Nashville.

I haven't forgotten Larry Gilbert's record, and all that, but the Pelicans are well balanced. They probably have better pitching than New Orleans.

And Johnny Mihalic can play only when Nashville is at home. Charley Brewster, regular shortstop, won't be available at all.

So it looks like New Orleans from here.

There are those who don't particularly care for Ray Blades, but he is a sound manager. He plays winning baseball. And Blades has had enough experience in the Southern League to take care of himself.

Pelican fans are charged up about the series. They are very fond of Larry Gilbert, who spoiled them with pennants. But they aren't wishing him any good luck against the present Pels.

The split season idea was a great one for these times.

It probably isn't feasible when player talent is to be had in abundance.

But as a means of keeping up interest, it has been well worthwhile this year.

Of course, in the real baseball towns, it doesn't always matter where a team finishes.

The turnout of Atlanta fans again leads for the season. The edge will be about 15,000 admissions. And don't forget Atlanta lost an opening day and important Sundays because of bad weather.

A New Start There will be quite a turnover in Cracker ranks after this season. A young, capable and hustling club will take the field next spring.

There have been a lot of things wrong with the Crackers of 1943, things beyond control at times, and it probably is just as well that there was a bad year.

Too many good seasons promote monotony.

Not that I am one who glories in seeing a team fighting it out for the cellar. But everybody cant' win.

It wouldn't be a very wise thing to try to sell Earl Mann on the idea that a cellar finish once in a blue moon is perfectly all right, because its' a brand-new experience with him and he doesn't like it.

Thats' one reason why the purchase of young players has been so extensive. At least five or six top-notch youngsters out of North Carolina now belong to the Crackers. Other fine boys have been signed out of New Orleans and other points.

Atlanta won't be any doormat next season.

The fans of Atlanta are entitled to a winner, and a pennant contender they'll get. I am willing to put down some chips on this prophesy at long range.

If I'm wrong I'll contribute for a small infirmary to be built on the grounds for Earl Mann.

But everyone should really feel sympathy for the fans of Birmingham. It has been more years than Zipp Newman cares to count since the Barons, who're closing out the season with the Crackers, have fulfilled their pre-season promise.

This year they excited fans by threatening to win the first half. They didn't win. And look at them now.

The Cincinnati Reds foster the Barons.

But as someone has said the need is for someone to foster the Reds.

One On Jones Do you suppose there is anything to that story going the rounds about Umpire Red Jones? It seems Red was invited to a big banquet in off-season.

There was the usual conviviality and fine food, and as the evening wore on first one speaker and then another got up to eulogize first one thing and then another.

And so, finally, without warning, they get around to Jones, who doesnt' expect to be called on.

The Redhead is a bit fussed and, without thinking, he rises to his feet . . .

And dusts off the plate!

Frank Parker Is Blasted Out On Net Meet

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 3. (AP)—Two ranking favorites, Corp. Frankie Parker of the Army air force and Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, were swept out of the National Singles Tennis championships today. With them went Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, 1941 women's titleholder, who found that she wasn't ready for a comeback after a year's absence from the courts.

Parker, who has been playing in the championships for a dozen years since making his first appearance when he was only 16, found once more that he was an "almost" player. Seeded at the head of the draw on the strength of his reaching the finals with Lieut. Ted Schroeder last year, Parker proved no match for seventh-seeded Lieut. Joe Hunt of the Navy and went down in straight sets, 8-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Miss Osborne, ranked third on the women's list, went down 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, before the strong, steady stroking of Dorothy May Bundy, eighth-seeded player from Santa Monica, Cal. Doris Hart, of Miami, Fla., national girls' titleholder and ranked one notch above Mrs. Cooke in the seedings, blasted the former champion out with a display of sheer power, 6-1, 6-3.

Others who advanced to the semi-finals in matches that went strictly according to form were Francisco (Pancho) Segura, who has won every tournament he entered previously this summer; Coast Guardsman Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, former national champion and Davis Cup doubles player; William Talbert, of Cincinnati, and the top-ranking pair of women players, Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles, and Louise Brough, of Beverly Hills, Cal.

Robinson Misses Red Cap Series

Manager Lewis, of the Black Crackers, received a setback yesterday when he received a wire from Robbie Robinson, his newly purchased outfielder, that his sister's condition in New York was still critical and may compel him to miss Sunday's double-header with the Jacksonville Red Caps at Ponce de Leon park.

However, a new catcher has been signed and will be in action. Reese, a Columbus, Ga., youngster who has quite a bit of experience, did nicely on the tour of the east, and with Kendrick in harness should strengthen this department considerably.

York Is First To Bat in 100 Runs of Year

By WATSON SPOELSTRA.

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A year ago Rudy York would have been $3,000 richer as producer of 100 runs batted in. That was the bonus dangled in front of him and he stopped at 90. Now he has 100 and no money, but it may help bring him high honors this season.

York yesterday became the first American leaguer to drive in 100 runs. In front office baseball, that's the payoff department. York tops the home run division, too, with 30 round-trippers, best in the majors.

Armed with these favorable statistics, Detroit is nominating the 30-year-old Georgia cotton farmer for the league's most valuable player award.

From the spectator standpoint, York's notable achievement of 1943 was his bid last month for a home run record. In 1937 he belted 18 homers to surpass Babe Ruth's record production for one month. This time Rudy got 17 homers in August and had to sit out the last two days because of schedule breaks.

Most of these round-trippers came at home and undoubtedly boosted the attendance. Although the club frowns on salary clauses dependent on the home box office totals, it is wholly possible that the Tigers will slip York some extra lettuce.

There won't be anything extra for those 100 runs batted in, though.

"We gave York the salary he asked last spring," a club spokesman asserted. "We told him there would be no bonuses and he agreed. Maybe he does better when the pressure is off."

Ordnance Will Play In National Tourney

Recently Crowned City Champs Accept Invitation To Youngstown Meet Starting Sept. 11.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Atlanta and Georgia will be represented in the National Amateur baseball tournament after all. The Atlanta Ordnance Depot's recently crowned city champions have been tendered and accepted a special invitation by heads of the National Federation to compete in the meet, which gets under way in Youngstown, Ohio, on September 11, it was announced yesterday by Cliff McGaughey, Atlanta Federation official.

It was understood that the winner of the Atlanta tourney would not compete in the National event this year, but since an Army team was the winner and the Youngstown tourney is being played as an Army Relief benefit National Federation officials thought it apropos that the Georgia soldier nine should be asked to play. Army officials here decided yesterday they would accept.

Lieutenant W. A. Rouse's Conleyites, who will leave here on or around September 9 for the National meet, probably will have a better chance to bring a National Amateur championship to Atlanta and Georgia than any other representative from here ever has.

The powerful Ordnancers ploughed through the recent Atlanta meet without the loss of a game as Big Bill Ayers, ex-Atlanta Cracker hurler, and Lefty Lewis Jewett, crafty left-hander, formerly of the International League, hurled brilliant ball.

The Ordnance outfit features an airtight defense, and plenty of power at the plate. George and Fred Najour, a pair of Atlanta boys, have been bashing the pellet hard all year and in recent weeks Gerald McQuaig, former star with Buford's once great Shoemakers and well known in these parts for his potency with the mace, has been added to an already star-studded lineup. No one here would faint from surprise if Ordnance rollicked through the National event.

Last night Post Commander Colonel R. L. Gaugler rewarded the winning Army team with a steak supper at Wisteria Gardens. Captain Cliff Smith and Lieutenant Rouse came along to help the lads celebrate and revealed that Pitchers Leonard Mayo and Dick Douthat and Catcher Frank Van Zant, of the runnerup Lawson General Hospital nine, have been drafted to play for the Ordnance Depot in the Youngstown shindig.

Lawson, Central Cafe Clash at Glenn Field

Lawson General Hospital will play Central Cafe at 4 p. m. today at Glenn Field in a non-league game, and Sunday at 3 p. m. will journey to Marietta to engage the strong Bell Bomber nine.

Jug McSpaden and Nelson Hold Lead

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 3. (AP)—Lord Byron Nelson admitted that he played the best round of golf in his life today when he paired with Jug McSpaden to post a best-ball of 62,, 11 strokes under par, and sail into the lead of the $5,000 Golden Valley invitational team matches.

Alan Ford Shades Kiefer in Feature

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 3. (AP)—Alan Ford, Yale's Balboa (Canal Zone) bullet, and Adolph Kiefer, of the Bainbridge, Md., Naval School, hit the finish line at the end of the thrilling 220-yard free-style sprint in identical time today, but the medal went to the Eli by an eyelash as the three-day men's National A. A. U. swimming championships opened.

Sandy-haired Ford and blond Kiefer, for years the nation's top backstroker, battled it out all the way, with hardly a stroke separating them. So close were they that the judges deliberated for 10 minutes before coming up with the verdict.

The time of 2:19.4 suffered in comparison with the world record 2:07.9 Bill Smith, of Ohio State, turned in last year, but the show the lads put on was tops.

Oglethorpe and Wheeler May Play Charity Series

Three-Game Series, One in Atlanta, Challenged by Fort Oglethorpe.

By ROMNEY WHEELER.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Fort Oglethorpe's baseball team, hotter than a pistol after beating 37 of its 47 opponents this season, tonight challenged Camp Wheeler's Spokes, the national semipro champions, to a three-game series for war relief.

In addition, Oglethorpe suggested that the winner of the Army vs. Army series meet the winner of the Southern Association playoffs in Atlanta in a challenge game for the Red Cross or other charity.

New Orleans, present leader of the second-half Southern League race, is expected to meet Nashville, first-half pennant-holder, in the Southern's post-season playoffs.

ONE GAME HERE.

Staff Sergeant Early Maxwell, former promotions editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal and now business manager of the Oglethorpe ball club, said the powerful North Georgia outfit would meet Camp Wheeler anywhere the latter chose, but suggested a three-game series, with one contest in Macon, one in Chattanooga, Tenn., and one in Atlanta. He said the victor would claim the southern service teams' crown.

The Fort Oglethorpe club recently drew 7,000 spectators in an Army relief game at Chattanooga, and Maxwell estimated an Oglethorpe-Camp Wheeler game would draw at least 15,000 persons in Atlanta's Ponce de Leon Park, home of the Southern League Atlanta Crackers.

Obie Brewer, Red Cross chairman for Atlanta, said he would be delighted to have the two Army teams play for the Red Cross here, and expressed hope a subsequent challenge game could be arranged with the Southern Association champion. He said persons with Red Cross cards showing blood donations the week of either game would be admitted free.

Billy Evans, president of the Southern Association, said he could not commit the league, but added he would poll the membership on the proposal for the champion to meet either Camp Wheeler or Fort Oglethorpe in a charity game.

Camp Wheeler, paced by heavy-hitting Cecil Travis, former infield star of the Washington Senators, won the national semi-pro championship at Wichita, going undefeated through the tough elimination tournament. The Spokes previously had won the Georgia semi-pro crown for the second straight year.

BURGE LEADS CLUB.

Fort Oglethorpe, led by Corporal Les Burge, former Atlanta, Brooklyn and Montreal first-baseman, won the Tennessee-Kentucky-Georgia championship at Nashville, and passed up its opportunity to play at Wichita in order to fulfill a schedule of war relief games. The team defeated Atlanta's Naval Air Station team last night, 18-2, for its 37th victory of the season. The club has played to more than 113,000 persons, 80 per cent of them enlisted personnel admitted free.

Besides Burge, Oglethorpe's lineup includes Catcher Del Friar, of Chattanooga, former American Association and Texas League player; Pitcher Jimmy McClure, of Chattanooga, formerly with Memphis in the Southern League; Pitcher Gene Lambert, of Memphis, who played with Memphis and the Philadelphia Nationals; Shortstop Tommy Bergdoll, of Memphis, ex-Piedmont leaguer, and Pitcher Ed Thaxton, of Chattanooga, who played with the Lookouts.

Sinkwich Due For Discharge September 11

Detroit Lions Auxious to Sign Star 'Unqualified for Marines.'

By WATSON SPOELSTRA.

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The toothless Detroit Lions, of the National Football League, who hadn't had any recent good news, learned today along with the rest of the gridiron world that Frankie Sinkwich, of Georgia, will be honorably discharged from the Marines a week from tomorrow.

Last April, having first choice in the pro league draft, the Lions put down the name of Sinkwich, a Marine reserve, on the gamble that he might be of postwar value. Now it is wholly possible that he'll make the wartime Lions a top contender for the title.

"If Sinkwich wants to play football, we'll be very eager to sign him," declared Coach Gus Dorais when informed that the Marine Corps at Parris Island announced it will discharge Sinkwich September 11 "because he is physically unqualified for officers' candidate class."

The Marines gave no further details on his physical condition.

Presumably Sinkwich should have no great difficulties arriving at salary terms with the Lions. Detroit is known to have paid the top figure to Earl (Dutch) Clark and later the Lions took the contract of Byron (Whizzer) White, who reportedly drew $15,000 his first year out of college. Both stayed here a long time.

What disturbs the Detroit front office at the moment are reports that Sinkwich is many pounds above playing weight. The Lions open against the Chicago Cardinals September 19 and naturally would want Frankie ready by then.

Today's announcement bore out published reports from Augusta, Ga., 10 days ago that the captain of Georgia's Rose Bowl champions would be available to play football this fall.

Sinkwich 'Unqualified' As Officer Candidate

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Frankie Sinkwich will be officially and honorably discharged from the Marine Corps Sept. 11 "because he is physically unqualified for officer candidate class," the Marine Corps announced today.

The announcement followed by 10 days a story in the Augusta, Ga., Herald which said it had learned Sinkwich would leave the Marines and return to civilian life.

Sinkwich reported at Parris Island for "boot" training in mid-July, preparatory to qualifying for officer candidate school. He joined the Marine Corps reserve last autumn while a student at Georgia, and was called for active duty following his graduation.

Subsequently there were repeated reports that he was due for discharge for a physical disability—flat feet, a heart murmur and high blood pressure—but these were denied by Marine Corps spokesmen. The Marine Corps also denied the Herald's exclusive story last week.

In his collegiate career he became the first football player in collegiate history to surpass the 2,000 yard mark in total offense for one season. His 2,187 yards (795 by rushing and 1,392 by passing) led the nation in 1942, and made his three-year varsity record 4,602 yards—eclipsing the achievements of Both Harold (Red) Grange, of Illinois, and Tom Harmon, of Michigan.

He is 23 years old and is married.

In Atlanta, Colonel James M. Keelin, Jr., state director of selective service, said a copy of Sinkwich's discharge would be sent to his local draft board, where decision would be made on his future classification. Usual procedure in cases of discharge for physical disability, Keelin said, is to place the man in class 1-C. Hence, he continued, the former football player probably would not be called for Army service unless it appeared that he would qualify for limited service.

Yankees Taking Seat Reservations

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Neither Manager Joe McCarthy nor President Ed Barrow will admit that the New York Yankees are "in" as American league champions, but—

The club already has started taking reservations for World Series tickets, which are coming in "steadily," the office said today.

Occupy, Jezrahel Favorites Today

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The two final major stakes of the 1943 racing season will be run tomorrow and Monday at Washington Park, with the Labor Day program ending a combined 67-day meeting for Arlington and Washington Park.

The racing scene will shift to 52-year-old Hawthorne on Tuesday for a 35-day program.

Tomorrow's special is a $56,000 Washington Park Futurity, richest summer stake for juveniles in the nation. Occupy and Jezrahel, owned by John Marsch, Chicago contractor, probably will go to the post as favorites in a field of 10. Jezrahel defeated Occupy, two-year-old brother of Occupation, in the muddy and rich Arlington Futurity and will carry top weight of 122 pounds tomorrow against 113 assigned to Occupy.

Others scheduled to start include the triple stakes winner, Alorter, owned by A. C. Ernest, of Cleveland; Kenneth Murchison's Texas-owned Dutch Raider, winner of the Hyde Park Stakes; Brookmeade stables' Pressure, an invader from the east; Abe Hirschberg's Detroit champion, Black Badge; Mrs. H. J. Damm's Zacapet; Lieutenant Colonel C. V. Whitney's Pukka Gin.

$550,000 Program Listed at Hialeah

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Hialeah Park chipped in with an 11-stake, $550,000 program today to give a boost to Florida's planned war-time horse-racing comeback.

Bidding for a return of the hundreds of thoroughbreds stranded here when the state's season collapsed last winter, the track announced a resumption of the Widener Handicap and put a $1,000 floor on purses. The Widener will carry an added stake of $25,000 instead of the $50,000 of peacetime.

Flying Forts Pound Paris Plane Factory

By E. D. BALL.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Flying Fortresses hammered the Caudron-Renault aircraft factory on Paris' outskirts and an airplane assembly plant near by today as sky-blackening fleets of Fortresses, Marauders and fighters gave western Europe its heaviest bomb-lashing of the war.

The Berlin radio and tranmitters at Calais and Paris went off the air tonight, indicating night Allied air attacks on the continent.

Five airfields in northern France were drubbed by the heavy and medium bombers in a furious two-ply blow against Nazi air strength in roaring accompaniment to the invasion of Italy, and 29 enemy planes were shot from the skies during the day.

The Fortresses, ripping through determined clouds of enemy defenders, shot down 23 and planted heavy bombs on the important Caudron-Renault factory and the assembly plant at Meulan Les Mureaux northwest of the French capital. The last raid on the Paris area was a Fortress attack on Villacoublay airfield August 24. Renault factories were attacked by Fortresses last April, and by the RAF last year.

Few German fighters challenged the other fleets hitting the five airdromes, and Allied protecting fighters smacked down six of them, four falling to P-47 Thunderbolts and two to Spitfires.

One of the fields hit was Romilly-Sur-Seine 75 miles from Paris. It was attacked by Fortresses with Thunderbolt escorts, with bombs laid on hangars and on or near workshops.

Eight heavy bombers and two fighters were lost, a joint American-British communique announced tonight.

The first great formations swung across the channel with the dawn of Britain's fifth year of war, and their numbers swelled by the hundreds as the blazing offensive progressed in striking similarity to the pre-invasion bomb paralysis inflicted on Italy.

A Nazi broadcast said the industrial western suburbs of Paris were hard hit, and that some bombs fell in the center of the French capital for the first time. Targets in the Netherlands also were hit, Berlin declared.

The Italian news agency Stefani said a heavy load of explosives and incendiaries was dropped on Paris with "many casualties among the French population," and the Paris radio said two subway stations were hit, causing numerous casualties.

The Paris alert lasted an hour and 55 minutes, a Vichy broadcast also heard by the Associated Press reported.

The German belt of airfields and communications in France has been drawing particular attention from American airmen in recent weeks.

Guadalcanal Marine Hero At Georgia Tech

Captain Donald C. Payzant, Marine antiaircraft battery commander, who stood off the Japs on Guadalcanal's Henderson field for 138 days, came to Atlanta yesterday to take charge of the Marine detachment at Georgia Tech. His battery accounted for 13 Jap planes.

Payzant.

Closest call the captain had while undergoing attacks from the land, sea and air came when he was buried under a wave of dirt pitched into the air by the explosion of a 500-pound bomb. Captain Payzant and another officer were dug out uninjured.

Payzant's battery landed with the first boats and 40 minutes later was helping protect the beach. Then it moved to Henderson field for 4 1-2 months.

Captain Payzant had plenty of praise for his men, explaining that during air raids every one else sought foxholes while his gunners stayed right out in the open, firing away. Several of their guns were straddled by bombs, but none took a direct hit. In fact, the Marine battery's only casualty was a broken leg.

Captain Payzant, whose home is in Boston, was moved off the island in January and has been in hospitals since then. He will be in charge of 200 future Marine officers.

BRITISH SLOOP LOST.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The admiralty announced tonight the loss of the British sloop Egret. The next of kin of the casualties have been notified.

American P-47 Escort Tames Toughest French Bombing Zone

By GLADWIN HILL

A FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Escorting P-47 American Thunderbolts made today's Flying Fortress expedition through what once was one of the toughest fighter districts in western Europe a veritable bomber's paradise.

These fighters with long-range gas tanks have got the German Focke Wulfe scared or at least the Nazis are showing the Thunderbolts a healthy respect, one pilot reported after flying with the large fortresses into France to bomb a Nazi repair depot on an airfield at Romilly-Sur-Seine, 75 miles from Paris.

The fliers saw only a handful of German fighters and they scattered fast when the Thunderbolts got after them. This was in sharp contrast with the last American raid on Romilly December 20, 1942, which still is talked of as a tough grind.

The bomber boys gave their escort full credit for facilitating their good bombing of the Nazi's hangars and workshops.

"That P-47 fighter cover saved our necks," said Major Kirk Mitchell, Oklahoma City, who led this group in the Fortress, "Satan's workshop."

"There couldn't have been more than 20 of them around us—mostly Focke-Wulfs with a couple of ME 109s," said Bombardier Lieutenant Edwin Lamme, Fresno, Calif.

First Lady Reaches Canberra; Is Surprised by Invasion News

By ROBERT EUNSON.

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 4. (Saturday)—(AP)—Wartime customs and an old tradition go into discard today at a state luncheon in honor of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt who arrived yesterday by air from New Zealand.

The wife of the American president is the first woman ever invited to eat in the parliament house dining room.

A red carpet, reserved usually for royalty, has been brought out for use on the parliament steps.

Mrs. Roosevelt was greeted at the airport by Governor General and Lady Gowrie. In a special broadcast to the nation she expressed pleasure at being here.

Later, at a press conference she noted a lack of chairs and said:

"At home I would ask you to sit on the floor in a situation like this."

The English and Australian reporters did just that.

News of the Allied landing in Italy reached Mrs. Roosevelt during the press conference. She caught her breath and obviously was surprised.

Plaintiff Seeks Treble Damage In Rent Suit

H. N. Colvin, of Marietta, yesterday sought to recover treble damages in a suit filed in federal court against Mrs. Arizona R. Stovall, of 336 Atlanta street, Marietta, charging her with violation of the rent control section of the Emergency Price Control Act.

In the suit filed by T. O. Hathcock and Darby T. Coker, attorneys for the plaintiff, Colvin claims that Mrs. Stovall charged him $10 a week for two rooms and a bath which were being rented for $6.87 per week during March, 1942, the base period for determining the rent ceiling.

Colvin asked for a judgment of $350 or $50 for each of the seven weeks the alleged excessive nt charge was made. He further claimed that Mrs. Stovall never filed a registration or statement on former rent charged for the apartment, as was required by the OPA rent regulations.

This was the second suit filed in district court here within two weeks charging violation of the rent control regulation, Henry H. Thomas having been charged with violation of the regulation in a suit filed last week by the Office of Price Administration.

Housing Office To Handle All Marietta Units

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 3.—A War Housing Agency created by the Federal Housing Agency, and absorbing the local housing coordinator's office, has been organized in Marietta, and will serve as a clearing house for all government and privately financed housing units within Marietta, Mayor Rip Blair announced today.

Claude Hendon, manager of the Atlanta and Marietta Federal Housing Bureau, said that the purpose of the agency was to secure housing for immigrant war workers in this area, which are classified as essential migratory workers; people who work in local war industries, but have to commute, and people dispossessed from their present homes. Before a worker may rent or buy a housing unit, he must be certified of his eligibility through the War Housing Agency office.

Army pe onnel will not be eligible for units under the FHA, but the office in Marietta will continue placing them in private homes, Mrs. Roy Collins, assistant manager and supervisor of the Marietta bureau, said. Army personnel are eligible for units in the Victory homes, which were authorized before the new ruling.

"Of the 1,500 homes alloted this year, 1,000 will be completed by the first of next month. Construction of 500 units will begin immediately and will be ready for occupancy in six or eight months. At present, an average of 20 families are moving into completed war housing units daily," Mayor Blair stated today.

The War Housing Agency announced the creation of a War Housing Committee to serve as an advisory board. Mayor Rip Blair is chairman. Other members include T. C. Branson, public housing; W. H. Warnke, war housing; Shuler Antley, schools; Roy Brownfield, Chamber of Commerce; Alton H. Glasure, clergy; P. G. Smith, building and loans; Harold B. Gunby, Bell housing officer; M. A. Cook Jr., transportation, and Howard Schaeffer, planning committee.

3d of Shipping Gone, Jap Loot Is Stranded

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A third of Japan's merchant shipping has been destroyed and the war lords of Tokyo find themselves in the "embarrassing" position of a burglar who has stolen more than he can carry.

Secretary of the Navy Knox drew this comparison today in telling a press conference that Allied forces—principally American submarines—have sunk more than 2,500,000 tons of shipping on which the enemy had depended to help make use of his rich, sprawling Pacific empire.

And, he added, the rate of destruction is growing.

The shipping deficit means, Knox said, that the Japanese are having difficulty maintaining communications with their outlying bases and cannot develop the vast resources of their territories in the southwest Pacific, which, fully employed, might make them almost impregnable.

Ground Swell Duel.

How this is affecting their war effort is expected to show up in the remaining months of this year as the Allied grand offensive against Nippon is due to get rolling powerfully from all sides at once.

On the basis of indications that the American-British high command has laid out a four-pronged strategy employing simultaneously forces based in India, in the southwest, central and north Pacific, enemy cargo capacity should be badly overworked by some time this fall.

As the Japanese find themselves unable to maintain effective forces at distant points from the homeland they almost certainly will have to evacuate more bases as they evacuated Kiska and positions in the central Solomons last month.

Moreover, Navy officials now promise attacks on the Japanese homeland: Ship construction facilities there may be put down as a prime target.

Drastic Jap Losses.

While Knox gave it as official that one-third of Japan's total available cargo tonnage has been destroyed since the war began, he used unofficial published estimates to arrive at an actual tonnage total. He said that when the war began the Japanese were credited in published reports with having on hand 6,368,892 tons of merchant ships. In addition, he said, they have built or seized or otherwise acquired an estimated 1,250,000 tons since the war started, giving them a total available tonnage of 7,618,891.

"We've sunk a third of this," Knox said. One-third is 2,539,630 tons, but the secretary preferred the more inexact expression of "more than 2,500,000 tons."

Of this total destroyed, Knox continued, 77 per cent has been sunk by submarines, mostly American, and the remainder was destroyed by the combination of all other forces, surface and air.

Moreover, Knox said, the American submarine force is steadily growing in the Pacific and this means a steadily increasing rate of destruction of enemy craft. The submarine service "has been doing an outstanding, a perfectly splendid job in the Pacific," he declared.

The secretary declined to say flatly that the evacuation of Kiska and the other islands by the Japanese was due primarily to loss of merchant shipping on which they must depend to keep their troops supplied, but he did say the obvious effect of this loss is to "make communications more difficult." Therein, he said, lies one of the reasons for the evacuation.

A reporter asked whether the losses had not made it impossible for the Japanese to exploit profitably their conquered territories in the southwest area where they hold the rich Dutch East Indies as well as the rubber plantation of Malaya.

"Yes," Knox declared. "Obviously the loss of cargo ships must be embarrassing to them. We are striking one of their vital activities. All their war-gained territories have to be reached by overseas means and the steady destruction of that means of communications is bound to impair the use they can make of their war loot."

Postwar Road Survey Asked In Cobb County

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau.

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 3.—Recommendation for a survey for 28 post-war roads in Cobb county, which will provide an improved road within three miles of any place in the county, has been made to the government by County Commissioner George McMillan. This is being done in accordance with a bill passed in the last session of congress which makes "federal funds available for preparation of surveys and plans in connection with post-war highway improvements."

"This is the first step toward post-war planning and employment in my field. There is a lot of work to be done before any road can be paved with federal or state aid. And it is that work that we want done now—surveying, planning, investigating, checking its value to the community and to the farmers," McMillan said.

Judge J. J. Daniell, a member of the planning commission, described the proposed project as a wheel which encircles the county, and the farm-to-market roads as spokes to the center.

WFA Working To Hold Down Sales of Milk

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The War Food Administration disclosed today it is working on a plan to prevent further increases in milk sales in order to make available more butter, cheese and evaporated milk.

The plan does not involve point rationing, nor does it contemplate curtailment of milk consumption below recent levels, the WFA announcement said.

The WFA asserted that the "Number 1 problem on the dairy front" is the threat to civilian supplies of butter, cheese and evaporated milk resulting from continually increasing consumption of fluid milk.

"Should fluid milk consumption expand still further production of cheese, butter and evaporated milk would decline below the amount necessary to meet essential civilian requirements," the announcement said.

"The WFA has been and is continuing to urge farmers to ship more milk to market. The government is assisting in financing the construction of milk powder plants in strategic areas to provide the farmers with a ready market. In view of a shortage of feed in many areas, many farmers find it more profitable or more necessary to use the skim milk on the farm, selling the cream to a local creamery. A large volume of milk, moreover, probably will continue to be retained on the farm for various uses or to be sold at retail by the farmer himself."

Mrs. J. H. Dew Dies In New York City

Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. J. Harvey Dew, of New York, former Georgian, which occured in New York on August 13. Burial was in Mount Hope cemetery in Hastings, N. Y., on August 16. A daughter, Miss Carolyn Wellborn Dew, of New York, and Stanford, Conn., where the family has a summer home, survives.

The former Miss Carolyn Martin, Mrs. Dew was the widow of Dr. J. Harvey Dew, prominent New York physician, and was born at the ancestral home of her grandfather, Colonel Alfred Wellborn, at Cold Springs, Ga., now the site of the U. S. Fisheries. Former Governor John M. Slaton, and members of his family, and the late Colonel Edmund Martin, and his family are Georgia relatives of Mrs. Dew.

Ritchie Warns On Absenteeism

"Never before has the prospect for peace been so bright or the outline for victory so sure as it now is, but there is danger in that very prospect," Lieutenant Colonel Charles A. Ritchie, of the Services of Supply, Fourth Service Command, told employes of Whittier Mills yesterday in a pre-Labor Day address.

Speaking on behalf of the War Man-Power Commission in a drive against absenteeism, and slackening in production, Colonel Ritchie stressed the importance of employes staying on the job to keep supplies going to the divisions on the fighting fronts, which is the true road to victory.

Fewer Conveniences Promised by Official

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Civilians were told today by Arthur D. Whiteside, vice chairman of civilian requirements for the War Production Board, that they face "a constantly reduced standard of living," but that the manufacture of repair parts for civilian appliances is "one essential need we intend to fill."

Writing in Mill and Factory, a trade magazine for industrial management, he said that "not until the Axis powers are plainly on the road to defeat can we give serious consideration to the manufacture of articles that fall just beyond the essential category."

U. S. Bombers Jar Burmese Rail Hub

NEW DELHI, Sept. 3.—(AP)—American heavy and medium bombers dumped approximately 40 tons of explosives on rail yards and barracks at Japanese-held Pyawbwe, 95 miles south of Mandalay, in a heavy daylight attack yesterday, U. S. Tenth Air Force headquarters announced today.

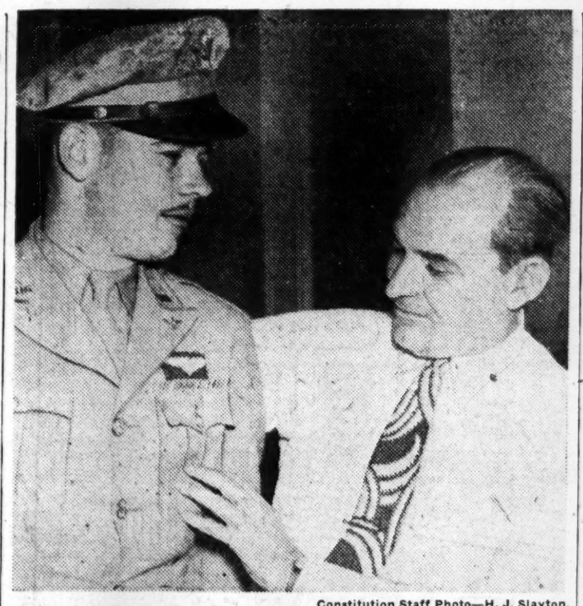

A headquarters communique said the Liberators and Mitchells demolished several buildings, including warehouses, and destroyed considerable trackage and rolling stock.

In other daylight attacks on Japanese installations in Burma yesterday, twin-engined Mitchells destroyed warehouses and workshops at Chauk, about 100 miles southwest of Mandalay, and scored direct hits on docks and storage buildings at Toungoo, about 210 miles south of Mandalay, which itself was the target of American heavy bombers the previous day.

The group will study co-ordination of rail, ship and motor operations to insure fluid flow and to expedite sending War Department supplies to posts, camps and stations in this zone which covers seven southeastern states.

PLENTY OF DECORATIONS—First Lieutenant John Lucas has the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with three clusters for his combat duty as a bombardier in England. His uncle, John A. Cunningham, is busy examining the ribbons worn to represent the medals.

AtlantanBack HomeWith DFC, Gray Hairs, 25 Bombing Trips

First Lieutenant John Lucas, Flying Fortress bombardier, was back in Atlanta yesterday with a few more gray hairs, 25 bombing missions, the Distinguished Flying Cross and a two-stitch scar on his forehead to show for six and a half months of combat duty.

The Atlantan got the DFC after completing his fifteenth mission and shooting down two enemy planes which came in head-on; the gash was the result of being dumped on the floor of the plane from concussion when an anti-aircraft shell knocked out the hydraulic system, and the gray hairs—well, they came while he was "sweating out" his last missions.

Glad To Get Home.

"I wouldn't take anything in the world for the experience," Lieutenant Lucas said as a starter, "but you wouldn't be exaggerating one bit to say I'm awfully glad to get back home."

And then he went on to tell about his last three missions—"the toughest of them all, because I knew if I could get to 25 I was headed home to see my family and the baby I'd never seen."

"The 23d one was tough—over the Ruhr, or Happy Valley, as the boys call it," Lucas said. "We were in the heavy flak area for 15 minutes on that one. The next one was pretty bad. We were in enemy territory 3½ hours and under attack for 2¾ hours. They sent up everything that would fly. I counted five different types of enemy aircraft on that one.

Sweating It Out.

"The last one would be considered easy, if it hadn't been No. 25 and carrying a ticket home. It was over an airfield in Holland. Very little flak and few fighters, but was I sweating it out? And then just ahead of me—right under my nose—a Fort got its tail knocked off and went down in a spin. No one got out.

'It made me think, I'll tell you. I sure was glad to get back to England."

Worst time that Lieutenant Lucas' plane had came on about his 14th raid which was over Wilhelmshaven. One waistgunner was killed by a cannon shell and the same shot wounded the other waistgunner, Lucas said.

"The explosion blew a hole in the side of the plane much bigger than your hat," Lucas continued. The plane got back without any more trouble, though.

Nazi Pilots Daring.

On the subject of flak, Lucas pointed out that the German fighter pilots are daring and dive into their own gunfire to take cracks at the Fortresses. The fighters came so close at times, the Forts have to dodge them, he pointed out.

Another thing he noticed was the effectiveness of smoke screens which the Nazis have been using over target areas. Makes you do quite a bit of scientific guessing about where the target is," Lucas added.

Lieutenant Lucas, son of Mrs. Arthur Lucas, of 2494 Peachtree road, N. W., and the late Mr. Lucas, who died while he was overseas, made what is known as "an entrance" to England. His Fort plowed up a turnip field in a forced landing after running out of gasoline in soupy weather.

The young officer will visit Mrs. Lucas and their three children in Savannah, as well as his family here. His only son, Arthur Melville Lucas IV, was born August 15.

Extension of Italian Bridgehead Is Promised by General Devers

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—In the heart of London, on the square where American military quarters is situated, United States soldiers, sailors, Marines and WACS joined the British today in observing their national day of prayer with a promise that the bridgehead established in southern Italy would be extended for the liberation of all subjugated Europe.

In a message on this, the fourth anniversary of Britain's entry into the war, Lieutenant General Jacob L. Devers, American commander in the European theater, asserted:

"Our prayers today are linked with action . . . This is the first of the bridgeheads which in the fifth year of war, with God's help, we will establish and breach the fortress of Europe on land, even as it already has been breached from the air.

"Its annihilation is certain. During the fifth year of their suffering the peoples of the occupied lands may hopefully turn their eyes toward deliverance."

RAF Jolts Trucks On Greek Coast

CAIRO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—RAF Beaufighters attacked and damaged a concentration of enemy transport vehicles on a highway south of Preveza on the western coast of Greece yesterday and made a direct hit amidships on a merchant vessel near Preveza, a Middle East air communique said today.

The attack on the transport vehicles caused an explosion and a number of fires, the announcement said. One aircraft was reported missing.

In an appeal for loyalty to the child, Christo Kalfoff, president of the Bulgarian chamber, said, "His majesty faces stormy days and many trials," DNB added in a dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press.

U.S. Exports Show Increase for July

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—United States exports during the first seven months of this year were more than $500,000,000 above the total annual shipments in either of the first World War years of 1917 and 1918, the Census Bureau reported today.

July shipments of $1,251,000,000 represented a 25 per cent increase over June, a 92 per cent gain over the July a year ago and marked the third consecutive month in which exports exceeded the billion-dollar mark.

For the seven-month period shipments aggregated $6,738,000,000 contrasted to the 1917 full year figure of 6,234,000,000 and $6,149,000,000 for 1918.

GOP Advance Guard Readies for Meeting

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The advance guard of members of the Republican war council arrived here early today for the conference which will convene officially Monday.

Among early arrivals were Harrison E. Spangler, chairman of the Republican national committee; Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, and several governors. They were greeted with a 19-gun salute from the hill of old Fort Mackinac as they disembarked from the steamer North American.

Preliminary conference committee meetings will begin tonight to continue through Sunday.

Remove Restrictions On Packaged Chicory

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The War Food Administration removed all restrictions today against the sale and delivery of packaged chicory.

Chicory for roasting is produced primarily in Michigan, and is used almost exclusively in the blending of coffee, particularly in the southern states.

Since coffee rationing has been suspended WFA said the chicory restrictions no longer were necessary.

Convict Workers Fed Plenty in Tennessee

By LAMAR Q. BALL,
Constitution Staff Writer.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—Here's a contrast:

Georgia convicts are fed beef once a week. Once a week they are fed fish and occasionally some chicken. Several times a week they are fed the familiar sowbelly, the fat meat off a hog fried into unpalatable lumps.

In Tennessee's main prison alone, six good-sized steers are killed once a week for 1,300 convicts. Tennessee prison officials insist that meat be served twice a day to a convict who is working. Tennessee also has its sowbelly, its chicken and its fish. But—

"A prisoner who works hard must be fed well," says Warden Tom P. Gore, 42-year-old lawyer, who has written two nationally known books on legal procedure but who works in a job that doesn't pay too well, merely because he likes the work and he is interested in trying to rehabilitate men who have strayed.

Cooper Explains System.

Governor Prentice Cooper explained the Tennessee penal system today to Frank Gross, president of the Georgia senate, and Roy V. Harris, speaker of the Georgia house of representatives, emissaries of Governor Arnall making an inspection of prison conditions in other southern states. The Governor intends to act on the reports.

"You must have good men in charge of your prisons to produce decent results," said Governor Cooper. "Almost any system will work if you have the proper men in charge. A good system could produce horrible results if the wrong men were in charge. We turn the management of our penal system over to men who are honest, energetic and who have good judgment.

Doctor Heads Department.

For instance, Dr. W. O. Baird, an ex-president of the Tennessee Medical Association, is head of the department of institutions, which controls not only the four prisons and the convict camps, but controls the state's other institutions, such as mental hospitals, juvenile correctional farms and vocational schools. "Doctor Baird," said Governor Cooper, "is a wealthy man who is interested in the welfare of other men."

The Tennessee prison system itself includes the main prison at Nashville; the Rushy Mountain penitentiary, at Petros in the mountains of east Tennessee; the Fort Pillow state farm in Louderdale county, completed only a couple of years ago and fast becoming the state's pride; and seven highway camps, where convicts are assigned to road work.

The Tennessee legislature appropriates $500,000 a year for the maintenance of all the prisons and the seven highway camps. Georgia appropriates this much alone for Tattnall.

Nine industries in Tennessee's main prison alone netted $118,502 last year. Tattnall has no industries—just a few hobby shops.

Tennessee's main prison conducts cotton and woolen mills, a metal plant, tobacco factory, a soap factory, a shoe factory, a paint factory, knitting and cloth mills and a mattress factory.

Convicts in the main prison produced meats, fruits and vegetables worth $103,291 last year on a farm on the outskirts of Nashville. Total farm products from the three prisons were valued at more than $350,000.

Tattnall has a disused saw mill, rusting because some time in the last few years all the timber was moved off the land. The Georgia prison has a tag plant, but no other industries where convicts produce and help to pay the expense of maintaining them.

Convicts Mine Coal.

At the Brushy Mountain penitentiary in east Tennessee, convicts mine coal for the use of the state.

At Fort Pillow state farm, Tennessee is building one of the outstanding farms of the nation, producing cotton, vegetables, fruits, fine cattle and hogs.

Prisoners in Tennessee are given milk every day from the herds of milk cows they tend themselves.

Every prison has a farm and each is worked to the fullest.

There is no woman's prison. The few hundred women incarcerated in Tennessee are housed in a special building in the main prison in Nashville.

Each prisoner is given a job.

Four Necessary Items.

"Hard work, clean quarters, good food and intelligent direction are the four necessary items in the conduct of a prison system," Governor Cooper said.

"We have no idleness—and we had only 13 escapes last year," said Warden Gore.

"Sometimes, a jail steward will try to make a financial showing on his records by cutting the diet of the prisoners. We don't permit that. We don't want the kitchens showing a surplus by reducing menus," Gore added.

Corporal punishment is tolerated only in severe cases of insurrection. Solitary confinement and diet reduction is the accepted system of discipline for the unruly prisoners. No chains are used on the convicts working on the roads. Shotgun guards watch these prisoners.

WACs Take Clerical Jobs in North Africa

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A new detachment of WACS arrived today to take over clerical jobs at Allied headquarters, supporting the fighting men who moved onto the Italian mainland just a few hours earlier.

Wearing steel helmets and carrying heavy packs on their backs, the girls lined up in military formation to be greeted by Major General E. S. Hughes, deputy theater commander, who said, "We're glad to see you; we've been waiting for you a long time. We'll house and feed you and make you work like hell."

When the WACS were recently made a part of the regular Army, those in North Africa were given the choice of going home to civilian life or remaining here for the duration of the war. Over 80 per cent signed up to stay.

HEADS BOND DRIVE.

ROCKMART, Ga., Sept. 3.—Colonel C. C. Bunn has been named chairman of the third war loan drive for Polk county. The quota for the county has been set for $750,000, a figure much higher than those of the two previous drives.

3-Year Tobacco Market Quotas Voted in South

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The War Food Administration reported today that 25,685 or 87.6 per cent of the 143,510 farmers who voted in the July 24 referendum favored flue-cured tobacco marketing quotas for the three marketing years beginning July 1, 1944.

Since more than two-thirds of those voting approved, the announcement said, a national marketing quota of 714,000,000 pounds for the 1944-45 marketing year will be in effect. This quota was fixed July 13.

The official returns, the WFA reported, showed 13,442 or 9.3 per cent opposed to quotas entirely and 4,383 or 3.1 per cent favoring quotas for one year only.

The closest vote was in Georgia where out of a total of 8,163 ballots, 4,262 favored quotas for three years and 3,112 opposed any quotas. The remainder favored one year quotas.

The votes in the other flue-cured tobacco states follow:

North Carolina—94,823 votes for three years of quotas; 2,133, one year only; 6,473 against quotas.

Virginia—15,914; 634 and 1,183.

South Carolina—8,274; 612 and 1,183.

Florida—2,372; 210 and 441.

Alabama—40; 5 and 4.

November 22-December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Caution should be used in travel, around firearms and in work where steel is used, previous to 11:23 a. m. After 11:23 a. m. dealings with women are favored, but go slowly in actual money dealings.

December 22-January 19 (CAPRICORN)—Your well-laid plans may be shot with loop holes between 11:32 a. m. and 6:44 p. m. Do not force affairs or hurry. The remainder of the day favors doing necessary duties.

January 20-February 18 (AQUARIUS) Oppositions and frustrations seem to be the order previous to 9:10 a. m. The remainder of the day you should make rapid progress along necessary lines of work.

February 19-March 20 (PISCES)—Give sound thought to what you are doing previous to 11:13 a. m. The remainder of the day favors contacting people with broad views.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Cotton prices declined sharply today on commission house liquidation and hedge selling against the new crop, influenced by the favorable war developments in Europe.

Scale-down trade price-fixing furnished the principal support. A good part of the selling came from outside interests who had been buyers during the recent extended rise.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—While London markets moved up today in response to the Allied invasion of Italy, prices on domestic exchanges generally slipped to lower levels.

The discrepancy was explained partly by the desire of home customers to keep reasonably liquid over the approaching lengthy Labor Day holiday. In addition, the thrust into Axis Europe, while highly cheering to the financial sector, was viewed as a preliminary development and most bullish contingents inclined to stand aside until the outcome was more definitely assured.

Stocks and bonds slipped from the start with selling pressure never important. Commodities, on the whole, were narrow.

In the curb declines were posted for Aluminum of America, Electric Bond and Share, Glen Alden Coal and American Gas. In the plus column were Cities Service, Pantepec and Sunray Oil. Turnover here was 121,240 shares versus 121,040 yesterday.

THOMASVILLE.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3.—The War Food Administration reported 1,458 hogs received today at the eight plants in Albany, Columbus, Moultrie, Thomasville, Tifton, Dothan, Jacksonville and Tallahassee. Receipts were moderate to light and prices held fully steady on a fairly broad demand.

MOULTRIE.

CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Receipts of 8,000 hogs here were supplemented by 2,500 direct to packers and the season's top price of $15.25 held on good and choice lightweights. The few loads of good and choice steers sold for $14.75 to $15.75 on shipper account. Spring lambs were 25 cents lower than Thursday's prices with the bulk being taken by packing firms.

Yesterday's announcement that the proposed ceiling price of $14.75 a hundredweight for hogs will be put into effect soon, apparently encouraged packers to withhold bids on stock held for prices above $15. Sows were off 10 to 15 cents and heavyweight hogs sold 10 cents lower. The high price of the day was paid sparingly for choice hogs.

Only a few steers of desirable quality were offered here and local demand was weak. The small supply of grassy and short fed heifers were selling barely steady.

Around 4,500 sheep went to packers on direct consignment, bringing the total salable receipts to 6,500. Spring lambs were bid 25 to 35c lower. The general market was weak with light sales recorded.

NYA Training Projects Go To School Board

The $500,000 National Youth Administration training center at Clarkesville, regarded by NYA officials as their outstanding Georgia project, yesterday was released by the regional treasury procurement office in Atlanta to the Habersham county board of education, under provisions of the act of congress liquidating the NYA program.

Announcement of the release was made by Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, who at the same time announced the transfer to school authorities of three other training school units of NYA—the West Georgia College NYA project at Carrollton; the machine and radio shops at Toccoa Falls Institute, near Toccoa, and the machine shops and woodworking shops on school grounds at Fayetteville.

The four units will give school authorities in the state use of about $750,000 worth of federally owned NYA equipment for the duration of the war and six months thereafter. It is estimated that NYA had $3,000,000 worth of property in Georgia and applications have been made for all of it through local school authorities and the state board of education.

NYA Operated.

Located on the site of the old Ninth district A. & M. school, the Habersham project was operated by NYA in co-operation with the Habersham county board of education. Transfer was made after the state department of education approved the unit for vocational educational purposes.

The Habersham board of education has tendered the facilities to the state board of education for possible use as an area vocational school, and the state board will inspect the properties Thursday, and probably will take some action on the proposal at the monthly meeting of the board September 24.

The Habersham units are located on 400 acres of land on which are 34 permanent buildings, including modern, completely equipped machine shops, motor mechanics training equipment, sheet-metal machines, radio school facilities, welding units, cannery facilities and dormitories capable of housing 300 persons. Tools and machines, which cannot now be replaced, are of types essential to training workers for war jobs.

Complete Unit.

The west Georgia property is a complete industrial training unit occupying 10 acres for resident students, and was released to officials of the college, a unit of the university system. The Toccoa Falls facilities go to the Stephens county board of education and the property at Fayetteville to the Fayette county board of education.

Use of these facilities, and any other NYA equipment which may be turned over to school authorities, will enable the vocational division of the state department of education to expand and speed up the war production training program now being carried on in the state with federal aid, Dr. Collins said. New programs, he said, would be worked out with local authorities at each of the schools which gets use of NYA equipment.

Conscientious Objector Quits Great Smoky Camp

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The U. S. district attorney's office reported today that Douglas A. Moody, 23, of Lexington, Ky., had fled the conscientious objectors' camp in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park several days ago.

The announcement said further that Moody, who wrote the district attorney he felt it "a basic wrong to submit as a free citizen to be conscripted into service," was sent to the camp August 19 from Clarkesville, Ga., where he had been placed in 4-E.

This Soldier Will Look Both Ways on Street

Private William Poirier, 25, United States Army, is as much in the dark as to how he became a casualty while walking down Gray street, N. W., as is anyone else, he told police yesterday.

Found lying unconscious in the middle of the intersection of Gray and Johns streets in the early dawn, he was taken to Grady hospital for emergency treatment for severe injuries of the face, especially the mouth.

At first he couldn't talk so that anyone could understand him, Patrolmen A. H. Jones and W. R. Bailey said. Then he told them he had been walking along Gray street when everything went suddenly white, then black.

What happened to him he did not know, he declared, before being transferred to a hospital at Fort McPherson. However, he was not robbed, he said.

Mrs. Churchill Doesn't Keep Up With Winnie

By MARGARET B. KERNODLE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill admitted here today that she doesn't try to keep up with her famous husband. She's just swept along, the wife of the prime minister of Great Britain said.

In what probably was her first press conference, Mrs. Churchill said she'd been teasing the President about congress. "He wouldn't like for congress to convene any earlier," she smiled, in reply to questions about her visiting congress before she goes home.

The prime minister's wife and daughter, Subaltern Mary of the ATS, are White House guests. They were introduced to newspaper women at the home of the British minister of information, Harold Butler, by the minister's wife and his daughter, Miss Noona Butler.

Mrs. Churchill, considered "next to the Queen" in women broadcasters of England, delighted her audience with war jokes, sidelights on English rationing, and insisted her husband "hates brown bread, but has to eat it anyhow."

Frankly fond of fashions, she longs to take a hat back with her and spoke glowingly of Christmas shopping for big soft powderbuffs and "satin things."

She wouldn't mind being able to take a ham home, either.

The women envied her "made in England" frock, buttoned down the front and smartly edged with saw-tooth self-trim. Even a man would like her hat, a finely woven black straw softened by tulle twisted over the brim to form a flattering bow at the back of her silver upswept curls. Her gloves were short, black cloth; her pocketbook small and black, too. Her jewels included the choker pearls she's said to wear all the time, pearl earrings, a diamond and ruby bracelet and a double diamond clip. Her suede shoes were open toed, black and high heeled.

Daughter Mary, in British ATS uniform, stayed in the conversational background, but unhesitatingly prompted when she saw a need.

The prime minister's wife toured the War Department's vast Pentagon buildings today, escorted by General Marshall. She disclaimed "Pentagon feet" from the walking she did, but then she's the woman English factory workers serenaded with "She's a Jolly Good Fellow" because she walked five hours in a row through war plants.

SCHOOL OPENS.

RICHLAND, Ga., Sept. 3.—The Richland schools opened here Monday under favorable conditions. However, three places were vacant for lack of teachers. Former teachers of Richland homes have been drafted into service to "carry on" the work. H. C. Hatcher is superintendent of the schools.

Ernie Pyle Says:

2 Gallons of Water Used by Yank Daily

By ERNIE PYLE.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—Sicily was known to be short of water in summertime so our invasion forces brought enough water with them to last five days. In the case of the 45th Division, this amounted to 155,000 gallons.

It was brought both in tanks and individual five-gallon cans. There were three ships with tanks of 10,000 gallons each. And then on the transports there were 125,000 gallons all in five-gallon cans.

That meant that this one division brought with it from Africa 25,000 cans of water. Just think of it—25,000 cans! And other divisions did the same.

Actually we didn't have as much trouble finding water as we'd expected and we needn't have brought so much with us, but you never know. Napoleon said an army marches on its stomach, but I think you could almost say an army marches on its water. Without water you're sunk. (As an old punster, how in the hell can you sink without water. Well, I said it; you figure it out.)

Consumption Figures

Throughout the Sicilian campaign, the 45th division used about 50,000 gallons of water a day, or two gallons a man. Just as a comparison the daily water consumption in Las Vegas, N. M., a city of 12,000, is a million gallons a day or almost 100 gallons a person.

Although the difference seems fantastic, still our troops used more than absolutely necessary for an army can exist and fight on one gallon a day per man.

It falls to the engineers to provide water for the Army. Engineer officers scout the country right behind the retiring enemy, looking for watering places.

They always keep three water points set up constantly for each division—one for each three regiments, and usually a couple of extra ones.

When a water point is found, the engineers wheel in their portable purifying unit.

Purifying Unit

This consists of a motorized pump, a sand filter, chlorinating machine and a collapsible 3000-gallon canvas tank which stands about shoulder-high when put up.

Purified water is pumped into this canvas tank. Then all day and all night vehicles of the regiment from miles around line up and fill their cans, tanks, and motors by a hose out of this tank.

Painted signs saying, "Water Point," with an arrow pointing the direction, are staked along the roads for miles around.

The sources of our water in Sicily were mainly wells, mountain springs, little streams, shell craters, and irrigation ditches.

The engineers of the 45th division found one shell crater that contained a broken town water-main, and the seepage into this crater provided water for days.

Underground Streams

They also discovered some of Sicily's dry river-beds had underground streams flowing beneath and by drilling down a few feet they could pump all they needed.

Another time they put pumps into a tiny little irrigation ditch only four inches deep and a foot wide. You wouldn't think it would furnish enough water for a mule, yet it kept flowing and carried them safely through.

In their municipal water systems the Sicilians use everything from modern 20-inch cast iron pipe down to primitive earthen aqueducts still there from the Roman days.

Our engineers made it a practice not to tap the local water supplies. We made a good many friends that way for the Sicilians said the Germans used no such delicacy.

Works For Sicilians

In fact we leaned over the other way, and furnished water to scores of thousands of Sicilians whose water supply had been shattered by bombing.

It doesn't make much difference what shape the water is in when you find it for it is pumped through the filter machine which takes out the sediment. Then purifying substances are shot in as it passes through the pumps. The chlorine we inject comes in powder form in one-gallon cans. We usually use one part of chlorine to a million parts of water.

The 45th's engineers brought with them enough chlorine to last six months. In addition, chlorine alum and soda ash is injected in the water. After you've drunk this water for as long as we have you don't notice the odd taste.

Distilling Unit

The 45th brought six complete water purifying units with it and also brought a unit for distilling drinking water out of sea water but this never had to be used.

When he marches, or goes into battle, an infantryman carries two canteens instead of one, but here in the hot summer it isn't unusual at all to see a soldier carrying six canteens tied to the end of a leather strap like a bunch of grapes—half his canteens being captured Italian ones covered with gray felt for keeping the water cool.

And I might add out of the side of my mouth, if you got real nosy you might discover that a couple of those canteens, instead of holding our beautiful pure water, were bearing a strange red fluid known colloquially as "vino" to be used, no doubt, for rubbing on flea bites.

Marietta Building Permits Top $3,500,000

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 3.—Building permits for August totaled $32,500, bringing the total for the year to $3,835,600, Building Inspector Howard Schaeffer said today.

When permits are issued for an expected 500 new dwellings, the total for the year will probably reach $4,000,000, Schaeffer said.

Berlin Suburb Feeding 7,000 After Last RAF Raid on Capital

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Seven thousand bombed-out persons in one southwest Berlin suburb alone are receiving their meals daily in a small movie house where an emergency kitchen has been set up following the last RAF raid on the German capital Tuesday night, the newspaper Berliner Lokalanzeiger said.

Received here today, this newspaper was the first in Berlin to give an inkling of the extent of the destruction in the city. As sketchy as the picture is, it is easy to imagine the problems the Nazis face.

In the same suburb, the newspaper said the Nazi district leadership headquarters was destroyed, so the Nazis moved to the town hall "where they are giving help to a stream of people which at no time of day lessens."

Although the destruction caused by Tuesday night's raid was not as great as that of the previous week, Lokalanzeiger said, "nevertheless the damage was heavy enough. Houses simply fell together under the force of high explosives and air mines."

Persons bombed out of one district were given cover in other sections, the newspaper said. This is causing a terrific strain on the city's communications system which already is badly dislocated.

The newspaper disclosed that Berlin's southwest sector and fashionable west end especially suffered.

One-Legged Georgia Veteran Witness in War Workers' Plea

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Four discharged shipyard workers found three unexpected witnesses today at a War Man-Power Commission hearing on their application for certificates of availability to take other jobs.

Major Howard J. Lepper, WMC area director, said the four workers, former employes of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Hoboken, were fired August 22 after they were discovered aboard a ship under construction sitting around a table on which there were money and cards, during working hours.

The trio of observers at today's hearing included Sergeant Laurence McAllister, of Denver, Col., and Corporal Jesse M. Alford, of Thomasville, Ga., each of whom lost a leg overseas, and Corporal Vernon Meier, of Monticello, Iowa, whose right arm was blown off in Sicily.

Lepper told the four men they were examples of the causes of production delays. Then he introduced Sergeant McAllister, who said:

"I can tell you men this war is just getting started. When we hear of a strike or a shutdown we feel our planes should be over here bombing. We, who've been sleeping in foxholes, wet and without food we want and need, can see no reason for delays."

Corporal Meier, holding a hand over his empty sleeve, commented: "We can't fight unless the workers are behind us. They're not over there, but they're playing a big part in the game, too."

One of the discharged workers said it was "common practice" for work to be halted at the yard a few minutes before quitting time.

Lepper, who granted the certificates, said the purpose of the unusual hearing was to impress on war plant workers that "this is a war which can't be won if workers everywhere are taking minutes off from their jobs."

Jury Asks Further Reform of Pardons

By DUPONT WRIGHT.

Doubt as to whether the recent reform of Georgia's pardon and parole system had gone far enough was expressed yesterday in presentments made to Judge Paul S. Etheridge by the July-August Fulton county grand jury.

The presentment specially criticized that section of the state law, as interpreted by the attorney general, making it mandatory for the Prison and Parole Board to release prisoners with good prison records who have served their minimum sentences.

The grand jury also recommended a midnight curfew for all amusement places in the city and Fulton county as a means of coping with venereal disease, that the police increase their vigilance in parks to end commercialized or amateur prostitution in them, and pointed out the necessity for a venereal clinic for Negroes. Other recommendations included:

Other Suggestions.

Establishment of a quarantine and detention home for the treatment and rehabilitation of prostitutes.

Maximum fines for persons arrested on vice charges and prison sentences for repeaters.

An "illuminating investigation of the making of bonds for defendants."

Union of civic forces "to do something about" the 28 per cent increase in juvenile delinquency in this area in the first seven months of 1943 as compared with the same period in 1942.

On the question of pardons and paroles, the presentments said:

Many Repeaters.

"In view of the fact that approximately 50 per cent of the persons indicted by us were repeaters, and because of the fact that the newly-created Board of Pardons and Paroles is such a revolutionary change in administering the law relative to the release of prisoners, this grand jury thought it expedient and prudent to investigate the record of persons convicted in Fulton county who have been released since the creation of the board on February 10, 1943. This investigation was in reference to Fulton county convictions only."

The jury found no pardons were granted, there were two commutations of death sentence to life imprisonment, and a total of 181 Fulton county prisoners released. The board, said the presentments, accepts responsibility for only 44 of these prisoners upon the basis of investigation by field supervisors and discretionary action by the board. The 44 were paroled, while 97 were released under what is termed "conditional release order" and 40 under what is termed "court release orders."

"The grand jury feels," said the presentments, "that regardless of the name given to the order releasing the prisoner he is at liberty to again pursue his career of crime if he is a habitual criminal."

Merit Found.

The jury found merit in the new parole rule which gives a chance of release to prisoners without legal counsel or friends, as well as to those with them. Under this system, a parole hearing automatically is given each felony prisoner who has served one-third of his minimum sentence, or at the expiration of seven years, if his sentence is for more than 21 years.

Taking up the "conditional release order," the jury found that the police records of the 97 released under this heading reveal "an alarming situation." The jury declared that the indeterminate sentence law which makes release of criminals mandatory upon serving minimum sentences should be changed. It pointed out a prisoner with the worst possible record might get off with the minimum sentence if he abided by prison regulations, while another who violated them would be required to serve his whole sentence.

The presentments, in considering the "court release order," urged judges to use great caution in requesting release of prisoners under this category, since "they will be automatically paroled without regard to their past record."

Churchill Buys $100 War Bond To Start Drive

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill started off the Treasury's third war loan drive ahead of time today, receiving a $100 bond from Secretary Morgenthau and declaring that the war would be shortened appreciably if the $15,000,000,000 total is subscribed fully.

At a ceremony in the diplomatic reception room of the White House, the British statesman said that if the campaign fails the war will be prolonged and for that reason "everyone should give it utmost support."

Morgenthau said 50,000,000 Americans are going to be asked to buy an extra $100 bond during the drive starting next week.

He handed Churchill his bond, which was attached to a cover elaborately engraved with a crossed American flag and the Union Jack.

"Mr. Secretary," the prime minister said, "I am very glad indeed to come here today and it is a great pleasure to me to receive from your hands this first bond of your great new victory loan.

"This bond, which you have given me, providing you make sure the legal details are satisfactorily arranged, I shall hand over to my wife for sale for the benefit of Mrs. Churchill's Russian relief fund. That brings us all together on what is this joyous occasion."

These "legal details," it was said at the Treasury Department, will require the naming of the relief fund as a co-owner. However, there was no expectation that the bond would ever be redeemed, as Churchill predicted to Morgenthau that it would bring "several thousand pounds" at auction in England.

2-State Tobacco Sales Reported

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The War Food Administration reported today that an average of $38.50 was paid this season on the Georgia and Florida flue-cured tobacco markets for gross sales totaling approximately 84,500,000 pounds. It was the highest general average ever paid on those floors.

The price was $8.14 above last season and $18.04 better than the 1941 average. Total returns were 41 per cent above last year, the largest on record, and marketing increased by 8,750,000 pounds.

The report said that demand remained steady throughout the season for all but inferior grades, which were slightly weaker near the end of the season. Compared with 1942, all grades sold at higher levels, with increases ranging from $4 to $6 for better tobaccos, and as high as $17 a hundred for poorer qualities.

The market operated under an Office of Price Administration order placing a weighted ceiling average of $41 a hundred for all flue-cured purchases by any one company.

Hisgen Appointed OPA Price Official

Appointment of Thomas L. Hisgen, of Dunedin, Fla., as regional price executive of the Office of Price Administration, succeeding Dr. Joseph J. Spengler, was disclosed yesterday by the regional OPA office.

Before joining the OPA staff in March, 1943, Hisgen was an executive of the Food Machinery Corporation at Dunedin, and has served as regional OPA machinery representative for the past six months.

Dr. Spengler resigned several weeks ago to return to Duke University, where he is teaching in the Army Finance School.

It's Navy Day as Two Brothers Meet for First Time in 3 Years

By AL SHARP.

Lieutenant J. V. (Vic) Cooper, of the Navy, and Corporal Jack P. Cooper, of the Army, saw each other for the first time in three years here yesterday and one might have expected a battle between the brothers about the merits of the two services.

But it was an all-Navy affair, because Lieutenant Cooper was aboard the cruiser Helena which was sunk by the Japs in July and Corporal Cooper, in only 11 months, hasn't had time to get overseas. The Helena helped sink four Jap warships before she went down.

What Lieutenant Cooper had to say about his experience when the Helena went down July 6, though, made up enough for two. He went through two other battles before the Helena was shot out from under him.

Picked Up by Destroyer.

Probably the most interesting experience of the sinking was the fact that Lieutenant Cooper was picked up by a destroyer which first started to take him aboard, then went out with others to sink a Jap cruiser and destroyer before returning to the rescue work. But let him tell it from the start:

"We established contact with the Japs about 2 a. m. I was lying down as I had been instructed to do at my battle station. The firing had started. Suddenly it felt as if I was riding in the back of a truck going over logs in a road. Then I bounced—it seemed about two feet in the air.

"Soon the command to abandon ship came. There was no panic. I happened to be with the captain on a rubber raft. We just held on and paddled to get away from the ship. There was oil all over the water, but luckily it didn't catch fire.

"Then destroyers came up to pick us up. Some Japs strayed by, I learned later, and they went after them, but the Japs got away. The destroyers came back a second time only to go out after the Japs again, this time getting a destroyer and cruiser.

"The third time the destroyers came back, a Jap air attack developed and the destroyers had to leave again. I saw what was happening and swam for a destroyer. I made it—a swim of about 100 yards—just 10 seconds before the destroyer pulled out. Later the destroyers went back after the others on the rafts, including the captain."

Lieutenant Cooper was in the water approximately four hours before he got aboard the destroyer. Most of the men from the Helena carried knives for just such an emergency. They could be used for splitting coconuts, releasing rafts, fighting sharks or killing Japs.

Made From Bayonet.

In fact, some of the men had their knives out the first time the destroyers appeared, fearing that they were Jap ships. Cooper's knife, which he has with him, is made from an old bayonet and a piece of an airplane propeller. He saved the knife, a fountain pen and his wallet.

Cooper was in two other major battles, being in the one off Guadalcanal, October 12-13, and in the other one on November 13, during which the cruiser Atlanta was sunk.

Lieutenant Cooper, 27-year-old Georgia Tech graduate, and Corporal Cooper, 25, who is stationed with the Army Air Corps at Dyersburg, Tenn., are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cooper, of 949 Springdale road.

Cobb Assured Health Center, Added Clinics

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 3.—A $35,900 health center has been approved for Cobb county through the Federal Works Agency, County Commissioner George McMillan announced today. A 13-room building, to be located on Waddell street, will be completed around the first of the year, and will accommodate the county health officers and a number of new clinics, according to Dr. J. E. Lester, county health officer.

"With $20,000 worth of equipment and an increased hospital staff, we will provide clinics for venereal diseases, maternity, and dental hygiene," Dr. Lester said. "Applications for aid through this office have increased nearly 100 per cent since last year, when the bomber plant got under way."

Bids will be advertised and probably awarded within a month, so that construction may begin immediately. The county will pay $5,000 on the project, the government supplying the remaining sum.

Haygood Memorial Will Hear Bishop

Bishop Arthur J. Moore, who has just returned from a jurisdictional meeting of Methodist bishops at Lake Junaluska, N. C., will speak at the Haygood Memorial Methodist church at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

The night program will feature a study and discussion group of the nine parables of Jesus, led by W. G. Freeman. This will be followed by the regular 8 p. m. worship at which time the Rev. Luther Bridgers, pastor, will speak.

Channel Guns Engage In Earth-Shaking Duel

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Big guns on both sides of the straits of Dover began an earth-shaking duel shortly before midnight last night and continued the heavy firing for about 40 minutes.

The British guns were believed to have been shelling enemy ships near the French coast. Long-range Germans guns at Cap Gris Nez and Calais quickly replied.

North Georgia Methodists To End Conference

North Georgia Methodist laymen will hold the concluding session of a three-day midyear meeting at Glenn Memorial church tomorrow afternoon.

Dr. G. L. Morelock, of Chicago, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Laymen's Activities, will deliver the final address at 8 p. m. tonight and 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Youth Fellowship Group Will Hold Rally Monday

The DeKalb subdistrict of the Methodist Youth Fellowship will hold a rally at 6:30 p. m. Monday at the Decatur First Methodist church.

The meeting will open with a picnic supper, followed by recreational and business sessions. The group then will be divided into four commission areas (worship, friendship, community service and recreation) for discussions.

New Gadget Will Enable Flyer To Distill Ample Water at Sea

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP) Higgins Industries here announced today development of a gadget weighing less than a pound and capable of being stowed away in an aviator's hip pocket which may save fliers from death by thirst when they are cast away at sea.

The flyer forced to bail out or make a crash landing at sea would merely dig a chunky fist-sized bundle out of a pocket of his flying suit or his rubber boat, blow it up into something resembling a round flat sofa pillow and, making sure it is fastened to him or his boat by its cord, toss it out on the water.

Then the device—called a Ushakoff Still, because developed by Alexis Ushakoff, director of research for Higgins Industries—begins to do its stuff. Its specially treated top surface, heated by the sun's rays, begins vaporizing the automatically filtered seawater which climbs (like kerosene up a lamp wick) into its interior. And this vapor, moved into contact with the seawater-cooled bottom of the gadget, congeals into drops of filtered water collected in the interior.

It will produce, Ushakoff said today, as much as four good six-ounce glassfuls of water a day, though it takes only one to sustain life. The more the glare of sun makes water imperative, the better it works. All the man lost at sea needs to do when thirsty is pull it in and drink from a mouth valve.

"The device," commented Andrew Higgins, head of the industry, "is simple as two sheets of paper and could be produced so cheaply that it could be tossed away when the pilot is rescued and a new one stowed away in pocket or rubber boat or both for the next contingency."

Purely designed for use at sea and on the water, no claims were made for its efficacy in a desert.
